DEMOCRATIC DISSENSIONS IN ALBANY COUNTY.

THE MEEGAN AND M'EWEN FIGHT—WHAT IT HAS RESULTED IN—HOW GOV. TILDEN WAS DEFEATED—HIS ADVICE IGNORED—THE SENATORIAL NOMINATIONS.

From Our Special Correspondent.

ALBANY, Monday, Oct. 4, 1875.

The Democratic leaders of Albany County are just now engaged in a quarrel which promises to result in the great discomfiture, if not the complete overthrow, of their party. The dispute of which I speak has existed for several years, and, in common with other difficulties of the same nature, it owes its origin to the jealousies and ambitions of a few disreputable men, who by trickery and corruption gained control of the ignorant and unthinking voters of this district. Some three years ago the existing feud could no longer be concealed from the general public, and an open breach occurred. Two factions were formed, one being headed by "Johnny" McEwen, and the other by a person who is known to his Democratic friends and associates as "Teedy" Meegan. Since the formation of these two cliques, a warfare more or less bitter, according to circumstances, has been carried on between them. Until this year, however, the fight was chiefly in regard to the municipal ticket, and did not have much influence upon the vote for representatives in the Legislature. This was the condition of affairs last month, when Mr. Tilden ordered his followers to assemble in Syracuse. Both the McEwen and Meegan wings of the party sent delegates to the convention held there. Of course each of the delegations claimed to represent the regular Democratic organization of Albany County, and to most fair-minded people it seemed that their claims were supported, on either side, by strong arguments. A number of just and right-thinking leaders advised that the dispute be carefully inquired into, and if possible amicably arranged. This, however, was not in accordance with the views of Gov. Tilden, and, in that despotic and peremptory manner for which he has become noted, he ordered that the credentials of the Meegan party, in common with those of John Morrissey and the New-York working men's representatives, be rejected, without inquiry or investigation. He did this in order to curry favor with a few rich and aristocratic Albanians who flatter him, and to aid the young man whom he familiarly calls "Little Charley" Fairchild. Incidentally it may be stated that the McEwen delegates had pledged themselves to support Fairchild for the position of Attorney General. This part of the Governor's programme was performed to his entire satisfaction. The claims of the working men were ignored, "Little Charley" was nominated, and the aristocratic connections of the Seymour family were satisfied.

GOV. TILDEN'S MISTAKE.

There is no doubt that Mr. Tilden expected in this way to gain complete control of Albany County. He knew that McEwen had a greater number of followers than his opponent; he knew also that the person named had held several county offices; that he was a professional politician who was well acquainted with all the tricks of his trade; that he kept a whisky-shop, and was what the Democrats call "a first-class worker." This man's friendship the Governor hoped to secure by the recognition which he procured for him in the convention. On the other hand, he believed that the Meegan party would be completely crushed out by the rejection of their credentials, and he confidently hoped that they would never again gather courage enough to oppose their successful rivals. I have the very best authority for stating that this was Mr. Tilden's programme, and positive proof that his calculations have failed and that his well-laid plans have been completely overturned. In the first place, the Governor was greatly mistaken in supposing that the unjust and arbitrary action of his convention would or kill seriously weaken the Meegan men. When the rejected delegates returned to their homes, they received the warmest assurance of friendship and sympathy, not only from their own friends and associates, but from a large class of intelligent and independent Democrats who would not submit to Mr. Tilden's dictation. The Meegan Democracy is largely composed of working men and laborers, and in some districts is led by gamblers and men about town. Such men, whatever their faults may be, cannot be accused of cowardice. Their constant boast is that "they fight to the bitter end." Meegan, their chief, is a young lawyer of considerable ability. He is a cool, calm, determined man, and he seems to have made up his mind that Gov. Tilden shall never benefit by the votes which he controls. His Excellency, having no suspicion of the formidable opposition with which he was to be met, immediately after the convention called his friends in the McEwen party together and charged them to make their peace with the Meegan faction as soon as possible. He gave orders that no effort in this direction should be spared, and instructed his agents to make any concessions which might be necessary to secure harmony and good feeling. He ordered them to promise Meegan the nomination of all the local officers he might desire, and also to allow him to name one of the Assemblymen. Indeed, the Governor was willing to give up everything else in order to secure the nomination of a gentleman whom he had selected to fill the place in the Senate now occupied by Mr. Dayton.

INDEPENDENT ACTION OF THE MEEGAN PARTY.

All his offers were rejected by the Meegan men, however, and much to his astonishment and disgust they refused to co-operate with the McEwen clique, and issued a call for an independent Democratic County and Senatorial Convention. The meeting was largely attended by the most powerful element in the Democracy, and amid great enthusiasm Mr. Daniel McElwain was nominated for State Senator. The gentleman named is a highly-respected citizen of this district, and there can be no doubt that he will receive a large vote. He has accepted the nomination, and there is every assurance that he will go into the contest with that unyielding courage for which his Scottish ancestors were celebrated. Indeed, he cannot now withdraw without dishonor to himself and disgrace to his friends. After Mr. McElwain had been nominated the Governor, seeing that all efforts at reconciliation would be useless, turned his attention exclusively to the McEwen party, and gave orders to his friends in the faction named to call their Senatorial Convention as soon as possible. The convention was accordingly announced for Saturday last. Then his Excellency, through his pet, "little Charley" Fairchild, informed the McEwen leaders that they should be particularly careful in the selection of a Senatorial nominee. I am assured on the best authority that the Governor was, for him, unusually explicit on this point. Among other things, he ordered that every effort to renominate Senator Dayton should be opposed and defeated. Subsequently he informed his friends among the delegates that he desired them to secure the nomination of Samuel Hand, the law partner of Mr. Fairchild. When the delegates came together in the convention, however, it was at once apparent to well-informed politicians that Mr. Tilden was about to suffer the first defeat of the campaign. Senator Dayton, in his usual quiet but effective way, had, as "Johnny" McEwen would say, "fixed" the convention. Mr. Tilden's friends worked hard to carry out his instructions, but they were obliged to give up to a superior force and Jesse C. Dayton was renominated. I do not think it would be possible to find a man who is so generally disliked by all those who know him well. During his Senatorial term he was never known to open his mouth in public; he voted, however, and not always for unquestionable measures. Mr. Dayton lives in West Troy, and he has been accused of being at the head of the Canal Ring, which has its head-quarters in that place. Last Winter he voted against all the canal reform measures, and did his utmost to defeat the good work of the Republican Senate. He, together with "Jarve" Lord and Senator Bradley, voted to send the Governor's Canal Message to the Standing Committee on Canals without debate. This is the secret of Mr. Tilden's opposition to him. To the Meegan wing of the party Mr. Dayton is particularly distasteful, and the men of that faction have good reason to dislike him. He was elected by their votes, and the moment he was secure in his seat went over to the McEwen clique.

It is, perhaps, unnecessary to state that Mr. Tilden and his friends are now making determined efforts to reunite their divided followers. The Governor's proposition is that both the Senatorial candidates withdraw and that some gentleman be nominated upon whom both factions can agree. This programme is not received with favor by either party, but it is particularly objected to by the friends of Mr. McElwain. The Dayton men express the utmost contempt for their rivals, and state that they can elect their candidate without any aid from what they call "Meegan's gang." Recent election returns, however, do not bear out this statement, and a glance at them will assure the most skeptical that Mr. McElwain's supporters are not without strength. In the last Congressional election the Meegan ticket polled 6,108 votes, and last Spring, at the municipal election, 3,500 votes in the City of Albany alone. Since then the party in question has received large reinforcements from the ranks of its opponents. At the last Senatorial election Dayton, then one of the most popular men in the district, was united upon by all branches of the Democracy, and, after a spiritless contest on the part of the Republicans, he was elected by what was then considered a small majority. This year the Republican leaders are displaying more energy and the masses of the party more enthusiasm than has been found among them since the first election of Gen. Grant. They seem to feel that their opportunity has come, and they are determined that it shall be properly taken advantage of. Many of the more hopeful leaders express the belief that the Senator and three out of the four Assemblymen can be elected, and even those who have always been noted for their caution are of the opinion that during the next two years Albany County will be represented in the Senate by an honest Republican gentleman.

HENRY R. PIERSON FOR SENATOR.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 5.—The Republicans of Albany County met in convention to-day, and amid much enthusiasm nominated Henry R. Pierson for Senator. The leaders of the party are fully alive to the opportunity which the present disordered state of the Democratic forces in this county gives them, and they are determined to win in the approaching election. To this end they have nominated a county ticket which is above all reproach. Mr. Pierson is well known and exceedingly popular in all parts of the State. He was a Senator from Kings County during the term of 1866-7, and in 1873 served as a member of the Assembly from this city. He was elected by a large majoriey in what had always been a strong Democratic district. His nomination gives great satisfaction to the Republicans and property-holders of Albany.

SOUTH CAROLINA.

A CONFLICT AT THE MUNICIPAL ELECTION IN CHARLESTON TO-DAY APPREHENDED—THE QUESTION OF WHO SHALL PRESERVE THE PEACE.

CHARLESTON, S. C., Oct. 5.—There is considerable excitement in this city, growing out of the election for Mayor and Aldermen, which takes place to-morrow. Mayor Cunningham is supported for re-election by a coalition of colored Republicans and a large majority of Conservatives, while the other Conservatives, including all the German citizens, aided by the partisans of Sheriff Bowen and the Custom-house influence, support ex-Mayor Wagener. The law makes the Commissioners of Election the sole custodians of the peace of the city on election day. Sheriff Bowen, in defiance of the instructions of the Commissioners, announces his intention to appoint 1,000 deputies to attend the polls, and many fear a conflict, as the Commissioners have notified Bowen that they will arrest, as disturbers of the public peace, any Deputies who may attempt interference with the election. They have ordered three white and three colored military companies to hold themselves in readiness to enforce their authority.

The Coalition or Cunningham party is substantially composed of the same elements which carried Charleston in the State election last year, gaining for the tax-payers of the city the first representation they had had in the Legislature since the reconstruction.

CONVENTION OF "TOTAL ABSTAINERS."

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Oct. 5.—The fifth annual convention of the Roman Catholic Total Abstinence Union of America will commence its session in this city to-morrow. A large number of delegates have already arrived from New-Brunswick, Canada, Massachusetts, New-York, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Kentucky, and the interior of Ohio. The convention promises to be one of the largest ever held. Over five hundred societies scattered throughout the United States and Canada will be represented. The address of welcome will be delivered by Archbishop Purcell, and a grand procession will parade the streets.

DOUBLE MURDER AND SUICIDE.

CARLINVILLE, Ill., Oct. 5.—A horrible double murder and suicide occurred here to-day. Charles Brink, in a fit of anger, shot Mrs. Deborah Hall, his mother-in-law, and Ellen Brink, his wife, killing them instantly, and then, placing the pistol to his temple, fired, killing himself also. No cause can be assigned for the terrible deed.

PORK-PACKERS' CONVENTION.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 5.—The Pork-packers' National Convention convened here to-day, with large delegations present from Illinois, Missouri, Ohio, Indiana, Iowa, and Kentucky, and small ones from Pennsylvania, Maryland, and Kansas. The convention temporarily organized by the election of George F. Davis, of Cincinnati, for Chairman, and B. Frank Howard, of Chicago, for Secretary. Committees on Credentials, Permanent Organization, and Business were appointed, after which the convention adjourned till to-morrow. This afternoon the members visited the various stock-yards of the city, and during their stay here will be taken to the fair, shown all the notable places in and around the city, banqueted, and otherwise entertained.

MISSISSIPPI.

TROUBLE APPREHENDED IN COAHOMA COUNTY OVER THE ELECTION OF A SHERIFF.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Oct. 5.—The following private telegram was received from Helena, Ark., this morning: "Negroes threaten to burn Friar's Point, Coahoma County, Miss., to-day. Several whites from there reached this place at 2 o'clock this morning for arms and assistance. A great many men have just left for Friar's Point, and many more are ready to go if needed. Serious trouble is anticipated." A gentleman from Friar's Point gives the following statement in regard to the condition of affairs there: Brown, the colored Sheriff, who is a candidate for re-election, came to Memphis last week and purchased a considerable quantity of ammunition, which he took to Friar's Point and distributed among his friends. On Saturday night the Democratic Conservative Convention was held there, and a ticket nominated in opposition to the ticket headed by Brown. Senator Alcorn, being present, was called upon for a speech, to which he responded, and in the course of his remarks criticised Brown's official career in a severe manner. Brown, who was present, became much excited, and demanded the privilege of replying, but Judge Rex, Chairman, fearing bloodshed, adjourned the meeting. Brown then announced he would call a meeting on Monday night, and it is supposed the troubles grew out of this meeting last night.

THE DANGER BELIEVED TO BE MAGNIFIED.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Oct. 5.—A telegram was received late this afternoon from a prominent steamboat man at Helena to parties here, asking for arms and men to go to Friar's Point this evening, but the agent of the Associated Press here telegraphed to a trustworthy party at Helena at noon for a report if any collision occurred or serious trouble was apprehended, and, failing to get any report, is of the opinion that the danger was magnified in the first instance.

BUSINESS IN SAN FRANCISCO.

ELECTION OF DIRECTORS OF THE BANK OF CALIFORNIA—A GRATIFYING STATEMENT FROM THE SYNDICATE—OPENING OF THE BIG STOCK BOARDS.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Oct. 5.—The stockholders of the Bank of California met to-day at 11 A. M. to hear the report of the Directors and elect new Trustees. Thirty thousand shares of stock were represented, and out of these Mr. Sharon, as President of the syndicate, voted 28,000, the balance being in the hands of individual holders. The following gentlemen were elected Trustees: D. O. Mills, Thomas Bell, William Sharon, George H. Howard, William Alvord, William Norris, John O. Earl, James R. Keene, Robert F. Morrow, Nicholas Luning, and E. J. Baldwin.

The Trustees will organize to-morrow. It is understood Mr. Mills will be President.

A committee was appointed to revise the constitution and by-laws, consisting of Judge Hager, H. W. Carpentier, Charles Mayne, G. P. Howard, William Sharon, and D. O. Mills, to report 9th of November.

A second statement was made to the meeting of the present condition of the bank, together with some review of the causes leading to suspension and matters connected therewith, but on these points the officers preserve profound reticence. The intimation, however, is vouchsafed that as regards the present condition of the bank the latest reports that the assets, with good management, would pay the depositors and leave one to two millions for the stockholders, were substantially correct.

The stockholders are reported to be pleased with the exhibit of affairs, and disposed to congratulate themselves on the successful management.

A vote of thanks to the syndicate and Trustees was passed, and the meeting adjourned.

Both of the big Stock Boards opened this morning with seats full and a great crowd of enthusiastic spectators. Business opened lively, transactions were large, and prices well maintained, shading off a little, however, on the street after the board.

THE MISSOURI PACIFIC RAILROAD.

WHY ITS STOCK DECLINES—A COMPARATIVE SHOWING OF ITS FINANCES FOR THE PAST THREE YEARS.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 5.—The rapid decline of Missouri Pacific Railroad stock on the New-York Stock Board is not a surprise to the few knowing ones in this city. It has for a long time been a matter of wonder why the stock remained so very steady. The net earnings of the road and its leased lines for the year ending 1871 were $170,504 96, and for the year following $16,367 30. The reduction was occasioned by an increased interest account on the mortgage debt. The gross earnings of the road for 1871 were $3,300,230 84; for 1872, $3,504,298 95; for 1874, $3,713,452 93. The increased mortgage interest and taxes on leased lines for 1874 over 1872 was $319,860. In accordance with the lease executed in June, 1872, to the Atlantic and Pacific Road, the stockholders are to receive $339,120 for the years 1873 and 1874, and $406,944 for the years 1875 and 1876.

A MYSTERIOUS DISAPPEARANCE.

L. W. POND, A WORCESTER MANUFACTURER, DISAPPEARS FROM A FALL RIVER BOAT—FOUL PLAY SUSPECTED.

WORCESTER, Mass., Oct. 5.—Hon. L. W. Pond, one of the heaviest manufacturers of machinists' tools in this city, has disappeared under very mysterious circumstances. Last Friday he went to Boston on a business trip, intending to return the same night. While in Boston he collected about twenty-five hundred dollars, but, instead of returning here, he telegraphed his son from Fall River that he was going to New-York on business. He took the steamer Providence for New-York. He, or a man supposed to be him, was last seen in the state-room on the boat. The next morning a coat, hat, and pair of shoes, which have been identified as Mr. Pond's, were found in the state-room, and one of the berths had evidently been occupied. His money and watch are missing. It is believed by members of his family that he has been foully dealt with.

A SINGULAR DEATH.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 5.—Mr. R. E. Hynson, said to be a wealthy cotton planter of Alexandria, La., was found near the Pacific Railroad Depot last evening in a helpless condition. He was taken to the calaboose and placed in a cell, under the suspicion that he was intoxicated. At about midnight some gentlemen called at the police station and inquired for him, when, upon going to the cell to bring him out, he was found dead on the floor. Coroner Dudley examined the body and gave the opinion that death was caused by heart disease. It appears that Mr. Hynson came up from the South to visit his daughters, residing a few miles from this city, and when found was very ill, instead of intoxicated. He being unable to get on the train at the depot, had lain down near by, and was insensible when taken up by the Police.

BANK RETURNS.

REPORTS OF THE NATIONAL BANKS CALLED FOR—A COMPARISON OF STATE TAXATION OF BANKS IN VARIOUS STATES.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—The Controller of the Currency has called upon the national banks for a report exhibiting their condition at the close of business on Friday, the 1st October, 1875. The Controller, in September last, issued circulars requesting returns from all the national banks of the amount of State taxes paid by them during the years 1874 and 1875. These returns are not yet complete for any State, and such banks as have not responded are urgently requested to do so. A compilation has, however, been made from such returns as have been received from the State of Ohio which comprises three-fourths of the banks of the State, from which it appears that the rates of State taxation upon capital in the City of Cincinnati is 2.52 per cent., and in Cleveland 2.19, and upon all the banks of the State, including these cities, 2.32. The amount of United States taxes for the same period was 1.92 per cent., making a total of 3.94 per cent. It is estimated that the total average of taxation of the national banks of Ohio is about four per cent. Similar returns were made by the banks of Ohio in 1867 and 1869. The rate of State taxation in 1867 was 2.32 per cent.; United States taxation, 2.29 per cent., in all 4.61 per cent. In 1869 the rate of State taxation was 2.50, and the United States taxation 2.87, in all 5.37 per cent. for that year. A license and an income tax were included in the United States taxation for 1868-9, which was subsequently repealed.

RELIEVING DISTRESSED RAILROADS.

THE FIRST MORTGAGE BONDHOLDERS OF THE CHESAPEAKE AND OHIO RAILROAD FORECLOSE—THE ROAD TO BE TAKEN BY THEM.

RICHMOND, Va., Oct. 5.—A bill of foreclosure on the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad Company's first mortgage was filed yesterday in the United States Circuit Court for this district. An identical bill has also been filed at Parkersburg, West Va. An order preliminary to a receivership, together with an injunction restraining any interference with the mortgage property pending proceedings, has been issued by Judge Bond. Upon the entry of the decree of sale, all the parties interested will unite in the purchase of the line and its franchises, paying therefor the securities they now hold. The judgment will clear off all existing liens on the property, and enable the corporation to obtain additional capital to complete their connections with the West.

THE EUROPEAN AND NORTH AMERICAN RAILROAD ALSO TO GO INTO THE POSSESSION OF ITS CREDITORS.

BANGOR, Me., Oct. 5.—At a meeting of the creditors of the consolidated European and North American Railroad Company, the committee submitted a report showing the total indebtedness of the road to be $7,372,704 95, and the net earnings for 1874 to be $334,830, a sum sufficient to pay four and a half per cent. on this entire indebtedness. They estimate that $600,000 can be realized from the sale of lands and other property of the company to reduce said indebtedness. The committee have obtained the consent of the stockholders to transfer a controlling interest in the road to the creditors, they to organize and take control and devote the net earnings of the road for three years to necessary repairs and improvements and the payment of such debts as are required to prevent the sacrifice of property, the balance to be devoted to the payment of the floating debt with certain restrictions, and to extend payment of the principal of the floating debt six years with interest. They likewise propose to the holders of the funded debt to bond half their coupons, giving certificates of indebtedness for the same, the coupons to be held by the Trustees and canceled when the certificates are paid.

The report was accepted and resolutions were adopted by the meeting embodying the main features of the report, that the road be conveyed to the creditors in trust for four years, and that if the road pay in the meantime, certain mentioned debts amounting to $60,000, the creditors shall reconvey the road to the stockholders; otherwise the property, to become the absolute possession of the creditors. This was agreed to by the committee of creditors, the committee of the International Railroad Construction and Transportation Company, and by the Trustees of said company.

A meeting of the bondholders will be held Oct. 19.

JAY COOKE & CO.

THE PRIORITY OF THE GOVERNMENT CLAIM UPON THE FIRM'S ASSETS AFFIRMED IN THE UNITED STATES CIRCUIT COURT AT ERIE.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 5.—In the United States Circuit Court this morning Judge McKennan read the opinion of Justice Strong in the matter of the United States against Edwin M. Lewis, Trustee of the estate of Jay Cooke & Co. The claim of the Government was that the firm of Jay Cooke, McCulloch & Co., of London, of which the members of the firm of Jay Cooke & Co. were partners, were, at the time of the bankruptcy of the latter, indebted to the Government in the sum of £132,610; that the Government had priority over other creditors, and that the assets in the hands of the Trustee should first be applied to the discharge of this indebtedness. The case was argued at Erie, and Judge Strong, sustaining the claim of the Government, decrees in its favor.

THE LANGMADE MURDER.

THE MURDERED GIRL'S HEAD FOUND—ARREST OF A MAN SUSPECTED OF THE MURDER.

CONCORD, N. H., Oct. 5.—The search for the head of the Langmade girl at Pembroke was renewed this morning, and resulted in its being found about one hundred rods from where the body was discovered. It was enveloped in a shawl which the girl had worn. One ear was gone, the face blackened and bruised, and one side of the skull broken in. In the edge of the woods was found a stake broken in two places, with which she had evidently been struck, and afterward dragged into the woods, where the head was severed from the body.

The officers at Suncook, a mile and a half from the scene of the tragedy, to-day arrested a man named Bill Drew, who lives about half a mile from where the murder was committed, and whose movements were very suspicious. The most intense excitement prevailed when his arrest became known. A great crowd gathered about the station where he was confined, and, but for the determination of the officers, he would doubtless have been lynched.

At the lowest calculation 2,000 horses are suffering more or less from the disease.

Kelley, of Pennsylvania, who had been engaged by the Post, delivered one of his characteristic speeches in favor of soft money. About two hundred people listened to it.

THE AMERICAN BOARD.

ANNUAL MEETING OF THE BOARD OF COMMISSIONERS OF FOREIGN MISSIONS AT CHICAGO—THE SECRETARY'S AND TREASURER'S REPORTS.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

CHICAGO, Oct. 5.—To-day the sixty-sixth annual meeting of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions commenced at Farwell Hall, in this city, and will adjourn on Friday. Between two and three hundred delegates and 1,500 visitors are already registered and will be entertained by Chicago church people. The President, Rev. Dr. Mark Hopkins, of Williams College, presides, and there are present many of the most eminent Congregational clergymen and educators of America, together with many prominent missionaries from all parts of the world.

The exercises were opened by a prayer by Rev. Dr. Blodgett, of Rhode Island. Rev. Selah B. Treat, Corresponding Secretary of the Home Department, then submitted his report. It shows that nine of the corporate members have died during the past year; that twenty-two persons have been sent out as missionaries; that the total income for old work has been $446,044; disbursements, $450,232; that the year began with a debt of $6,352, and closed with one of $10,396. The deficit for both old and new works is $44,323.

The Treasurer showed the cost of missions last year to have been $418,225. Rev. J. W. Andrews, President of Marietta College, preached the annual sermon to-night. The work to-morrow promises to be full of interest.

THIRD AVENUE SAVINGS BANK.

APPROVAL OF THE BOND OF WILLIAM S. CARMAN AS RECEIVER—THE ASSETS TO BE DEPOSITED WITH THE UNITED STATES TRUST COMPANY.

ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 5.—At the session of the Circuit Court to-day a motion was made for the approval of the bond of William S. Carman, appointed by Judge Osborne Receiver of the Third Avenue Savings Bank of New-York City, which failed recently. Ex-Gov. Hoffman and M. H. Hun appeared for the motion, and Deputy Attorney General Fairchild for the people and the Superintendent of the Bank Department. Mr. Hun urged that the amount of the Receiver's bond be approved at $75,000, and read several letters testifying to the high character of Mr. Carman.

Deputy Attorney General Fairchild submitted that Mr. Carman was the choice of the Trustees of the bank for Receiver, and questioned whether $75,000 was ample security for the custody of over $1,200,000 in assets, unless the moneys were so deposited that they could not be drawn upon except by an order of the court.

After some further discussion Judge Westbrook directed an order to be entered approving the bond of Mr. Carman as Receiver at $75,000, provided all securities of the bank be deposited with the United States Trust Company under the supervision of the Superintendent of the Banking Department, and proper acknowledgment by the Trust Company given him therefor, such securities not to be withdrawn therefrom without an order of court. This was accepted as satisfactory on both sides, and the matter dropped.

THE RECEIVER'S STATEMENT.

The Receiver of the Third Avenue Savings Bank, Mr. Carman, says that he has prepared a statement of the affairs of the bank, showing the amount of its indebtedness, (which has been already published,) and the amount of assets on hand, but, agreeably to the advice of counsel, will not yet publish it, preferring to wait till he shall have completed an official statement, which is required by law. The public will therefore have to wait some time longer before knowing what dividends may be expected. Mr. Carman says that he is unable to say anything more as to the amount likely to be realized than was said at first, when the bank failed. It was then roughly estimated that thirty per cent. or more would be realized. He says that the depositors with whom he has talked urge him to make no sacrifices in the settlement, preferring to wait a considerable time rather than be paid less than could be obtained by careful management. He says that he will take the opinions of well-known dealers in real estate with whom he is personally acquainted before making public any estimate of the market value of the real estate owned by the bank. He says that his counsel advises him not to communicate with the meeting of depositors, which is announced for to-night, unless he be invited to do so. He adds, however, that the depositors are welcome to any knowledge which he can give them.

THE LOTTERY SWINDLE.

THE CONTENTS OF THE WHEEL BEING DRAWN AND RECORDED BY THE COMMITTEE—A MONTANA MAN WHO WANTS HIS $50,000 PRIZE.

ALEXANDRIA, Va., Oct. 5.—The Gazette this evening says: The "Ticket Holders' Committee appointed to examine the tickets remaining in the wheel after the close of the drawing in the Montpelier Female Humane Association met again last night, and appointed a subcommittee, who, with the Commissioners who superintended the drawing and a representative of the association, commenced this morning to take out of the wheel and make a record of the tickets that were then in it. Nobody knows anything definite concerning even the management of the scheme, or who bought the tickets, who held them, who drew the reported prizes, or where the money the tickets brought is now held. The whole affair is in the dark. A man representing himself as E. B. Waterbury, of Phillipsburg, Montana Territory, and as the holder of ticket 45,424, in company with his son, arrived in this city this morning from New-York, for the purpose, he said, of obtaining a draft for the amount of the prize, which is $50,000. He states that he came on a visit to the Eastern States to negotiate the sale of silver lands in Montana of which he was the owner, and after accomplishing this object he was induced to invest $200 in tickets in the Montpelier Female Humane Association at its agency in New-York. After the drawing he immediately demanded payment of the agent, who informed him that an order from the principal office in this city should be first obtained, when the money would be forthcoming. He came here and called upon the officers of the association for the requisite draft, which they declined to give until the views of the committee now investigating the drawing could be ascertained. Mr. Waterbury left the meeting saying that he knew where $50,000 in United States bonds, the proceeds of the sale of tickets, was deposited in New-York, and he proceeded at once to the office of the Western Union Telegraph Company and sent a dispatch to his agent in New-York to anticipate his arrival and attach the bonds forthwith. His story is thought by some to be but a continuation of what is generally believed to be one of the greatest swindles ever perpetrated."

THE GUIBORD CASE.

MONTREAL, Oct. 5.—It is reported that the authorities of the Institut Canadien have been in communication with the Navy Department at Washington in reference to the use of the most efficient self-explosives, to be used in Guibord's grave to prevent its being tampered with after the burial.

OTTAWA, Oct. 5.—It is reported that a squad of 200 picked men from the Governor General's Foot Guard has been detailed to proceed to Montreal to be present at the burial of Guibord's remains.

MONTREAL, Oct. 5.—At a meeting of the subscribers to the Guibord fund it was resolved that immediate steps be taken to pay off the debt of the Institut Canadien, amounting to $15,000, and for that object to open subscription books in Montreal, and to send delegates to the United States and to Ontario.

SECRETS OF PRISON RULE.

STORIES OF WARDENS AND KEEPERS.

INVESTIGATIONS OF THE SENATE COMMITTEE—CORONER CROKER'S JAIL EXPERIENCE—HIS VISITS TO HIS FAMILY—REVOLTING CRIME AT THE MORGUE.

The Senate committee charged with the investigation of the various departments and bureaus of the City and County Government held another session yesterday at the Fifth Avenue Hotel. Senator Booth, the Chairman, only was present, and ex-Commissioner John I. Davenport conducted the examination of the witnesses. The feature of the testimony was the detailing by witnesses of the discovery at the dead-house attached to the Morgue of one of the most revolting outrages ever perpetrated by human being or brute. These particulars are unfit for publication, but the perpetrator of the offense, one John McDonald, a pauper, installed as keeper of the dead-house, will probably become more prominent as the inquiry proceeds. He is at present under arrest. Warden Quinn, of the Tombs Prison, appeared and corrected his former testimony, admitting that he had on one occasion taken Miss Carlotta Shotwell out on a business tour while she was a prisoner.

Mr. Davenport questioned Quinn at some length in relation to the visits made by Coronor Croker to his home while a prisoner. The Coroner was confined in cell No. 4, on the lower tier; he was not placed in the lower tier at the special request of any person; his friends were admitted sometimes as late as 8 or 9 o'clock at night; the general rules provided that visitors should not be admitted after 2 o'clock in the afternoon—from 10 A. M. to 2 P. M.—but the Warden had a discretionary power in many cases; if he desired to admit visitors at 1 or 2 in the morning he thought he had the power to do so; generally, visitors to prisoners were admitted on passes from the Commissioners of Charities and Correction; witness did not admit that the testimony of ex-Commissioner Laimbeer was correct concerning the Shotwell affair, only so far as he had now stated it.

Michael Daly, a Deputy Sheriff, testified that he and his partner, Deputy Sheriff Coughlin, were detailed to the duty of conveying prisoners from the Tombs to the State Prison at Sing Sing, and of escorting prisoners on trial to the Court of Oyer and Terminer, from prison and back again; witness had charge of Coroner Croker on his way to and from court and prison during his trial; Coughlin had other business to attend to; during the trial witness frequently took the Coroner to his (the Coroner's) home, after leaving court and before returning him to the Tombs; this occurred every day that he went to court except one, and that was the night he was out late, when the jury disagreed; the Coroner never remained at his home on those occasions later than 8 o'clock; he was never kept out so late as 10 or 11 o'clock; Warden Quinn had nothing to do with it; it was a matter of discretion on the part of the witness; witness had never permitted any of his prisoners to escape on the way to Sing Sing, although many had attempted it.

John Orr, Night Warden of the Tombs Prison, was next examined. Being asked to give his recollection of the taking out and return to prison of Coroner Croker while on trial, he said that he was generally returned to the prison about 8 o'clock; one night it was 8:45, and that was the latest, except on the night the jury disagreed; witness had known cases prior to that of Coroner Croker where prisoners were taken from the upper to the lower tier of cells; witness never admitted any persons to see prisoners or to visit the prison at night, except upon the written order of the Commissioners or when accompanied by the Warden; he understood the Warden had the power to admit visitors at night, but did not know of any rule or order of the board by which such power was distinctly conferred on him; witness had known other cases where prisoners had been taken to court and not returned directly to court by the Sheriff's officers.

Officer Dennis W. Griffin, of the Twenty-first Police Precinct, testified that at the time Coroner Croker was a prisoner witness' patrol post was on Lexington avenue, from Twenty-seventh to Forty-second street; witness saw Coroner Croker at his house once, in the daytime, during that period; it was between 11 and 1 o'clock in the day; Officers Haynes and Brophy were on the same post during that period.

James F. O'Rourke testified that he succeeded Thomas S. Brennan as Warden of Bellevue Hospital, and had now from seventy-five to eighty employes under his direction; this included the night watch, orderlies, and nurses; the average number of patients in the hospital was 600; to-day there were only 436; patients were sometimes retained in the hospital after they had recovered, when they were well enough to help at work, but not sufficiently strong to work outside; that matter was generally controlled by the Warden, but in some cases by the Commissioners; these were paid, as were also the seventy-five or eighty first referred to; there were about forty other less able men who received no pay except their board, lodging, and clothing; the clothing was generally that left by deceased patients; they are practically "hangers-on," and some of them have been there fifteen years; the keeper of the Morgue was A. M. White, and his assistant was Joseph Fogarty; White and Fogarty were paid by the department; White had been there many years.

Q.—Do you remember making a report on Thursday last to the board, in the case of one John McDonald, employed in the Morgue, or dead-house? A.—I do, Sir.

The witness was then requested to state the nature of the crime committed by McDonald; at 5 o'clock on the morning of Sept. 30, McDonald was discovered by Terence McDonnell and Bernard Halligan; they reported the facts to Capt. Standish, who arrested McDonald; McDonald was a pauper who was detailed to assist in carrying bodies at the dead-house, and received no pay; he had been there a long time in that detail.

Witness was then examined at some length as to the disposition made of dead bodies received at the dead-house and at the Morgue; no bodies were ever sold that witness knew of; the unknown or unclaimed dead were given to the students or else taken to the island for burial; witness knew of no monopoly of funerals by certain undertakers, but had once suspected such a fact for the reason that Mr. White sought to obtain certificates of death in cases where such certificates had not been applied for by the friends of the dead persons.

Terence McDonnell and Bernard Halligan then testified as to the details of their discovery and of McDonald's unparalleled crime.

Mark Finlay, Deputy Warden of the Tombs, produced and identified copies of the prison rules. The investigation was then adjourned until to-morrow morning.

A WOMAN'S EXPERIENCE WITH LAW.

TESTIMONY OF CARLOTTA F. SHOTWELL BEFORE THE COMMITTEE ON CRIME—EVIDENCE OF ANTHONY F. COMSTOCK.

The Assembly Committee on Crime resumed its sessions yesterday in the Chamber of the Board of Alderman, Mr. Thomas Cooper Campbell presiding. Messrs. McGowan and Dessar were also in attendance. The proceedings were begun yesterday by the production of the official records of the arrest of Carlotta F. Roddy, alias Shotwell, for conspiracy, and Mrs. Roddy was then placed on the witness-stand. She stated with much minuteness of detail the circumstances connected with the robbery of a number of bonds of the Selma and Gulf Railroad, belonging to her, by George A. Everett, in Detroit, on her way to Chicago. The facts in the case have been frequently published, and the purport of her testimony on this point was that she was induced to start for Alabama via Chicago for the purpose of being robbed, and she narrated then the efforts which resulted in the arrest and indictment of Everett and his associate, Frank W. Brooks, in this City, on a charge of grand larceny and receiving stolen goods. The indictment against them was dated January, 1873, and or eighteen months the case lay unprosecuted by the District Attorney. She produced a voluminous correspondence between herself, the District Attorney, and Recorder Hackett, respecting the prosecution, and upon the statement of the District Attorney that he did not wish to put the county to the expense of a trial, she gave $150 for that purpose, and advanced two detectives $100 to bring Everett and Brooks to this City. During the eighteen months she was subjected to all kinds of abuse at the hands of their friends, and they sought to connect her improperly with the Stokes case. At this period she caused the arrest of P. D. Roddy, her husband, for abandonment, and two or three weeks subsequently she was arrested at the instigation of Roddy for perjury, theft, and black-mail. She complained that the conduct of Capt. Byrnes, who arrested her, was brutal, that she was locked up with a drunken negro, and that for thirty-six hours she was left without food. After seven weeks' detention Thurlow Weed provided her with counsel, and the private counsel of Brooks and Everett, Mr. Fullerton, conducted the prosecution which was commenced against her. On the charge of larceny she was tried and acquitted, and a nolle prosequi was entered in another indictment against her. She left the City afterward for a short period of repose, and on her return ascertained that a nolle prosequi had been entered in the case of Everett and Brooks, and nothing further was heard of it. As a part of the programme adopted in persecuting her, numerous articles were published in the newspapers describing her under various aliases, and asserting that she was a lobbyist in Washington and a black mailer. She strongly denied that she was ever engaged in lobbying here or elsewhere, and asserted she never black-mailed any one in her life. In controversion of the allegation that she was never married to Roddy she produced letters written to her by him in which he addressed her "My own darling wife," and said they lived in that relationship for five years. As an evidence of her respectability she produced a letter written by Judge Neilson, of Brooklyn, to David Dudley Field, in which he represented that she was a lady of property whom he had known for years, and was a lady worthy of attention. A letter was also produced from a broker in Broadway, showing that she was the owner of considerable property at a period previous to her acquaintance with Roddy.

Mrs. Roddy's examination was here temporarily suspended.

Algernon S. Sullivan testified that he was induced to appear as counsel for Mrs. Roddy at the suggestion of Thurlow Weed, whose sympathies had been excited in her behalf by the representations of certain benevolent ladies who visited the Tombs; Mr. Weed was of the opinion that she was unjustly persecuted by powerful enemies, and when the trial took place on the first charge of grand larceny she was acquitted; application was made for the possession of the property claimed to be stolen, and Judge Sutherland, who tried the case, said he would take the matter into consideration; the witness then endeavored to secure her trial for an indictment on a charge against her of perjury, and wrote to the District Attorney on the subject; in a short time the indictment was nolle prosequied by the District Attorney, who stated that the whole affair connected with her prosecution was one of which he did not approve; he knew nothing about the prosecutions of Everett and Brooks, and had no interest in their cases save as they bore upon that of Mrs. Roddy; he was not consulted with reference to the disposition of these cases, and was unacquainted with the causes which led to their non-prosecution.

The indictments against Mrs Roddy and Everett and Brooks were entered on the minutes of the proceedings. The examination of Mrs. Roddy was then continued. She stated that an effort was made to procure her abandonment of the prosecution against Brooks and Everett for a consideration of $3,000, and Mr. Russell urged her to accept the compromise. The witness then narrated the circumstances connected with her acquaintance with Roddy and their subsequent marriage. Roddy represented to her that he was divorced from a former wife; that he had murdered a man, and that was the reason which impelled her to submit to a marriage without civil or religious ceremony, and which consisted only of a formal agreement to live together. She further stated that Roddy gradually became possessed of all her property, and left her in a comparative state of destitution.

Ex-Superintendent Kelso, Sergt. Murray, and Warden Quinn were produced merely to identify certain papers and property which were connected with the trial of Mrs. Roddy. John Beall, a practicing lawyer, gave evidence respecting certain papers belonging to Mrs. Roddy, which she deemed of importance for her defense; they were in the possession of the District Attorney, and, as counsel of Mrs. Roddy, he endeavored to get access to them; several important papers were missing, Mrs. Roddy informed him, and he noticed that the package of papers on the case which he saw in the court had diminished when they reached the District Attorney's office.

Mr. Anthony Comstock, special agent of the Society for the Suppression of Crime, testified to a large number of arrests made by him in this City of persons charged with selling obscene literature; there was great difficulty in prosecuting cases of this kind, and he remembered that large quantities of articles and book parcels he seized were not to be found in the Property Office. In one instance he gave McComb, the Property Clerk, exhibits for safe keeping, and these he could not find since; the opposition he experienced in prosecuting these cases induced him to state the facts in the office of THE TIMES, and the exposure resulted in the conviction of a number of offenders; the sale of this description of literature was very extensive, and it was sold even by persons belonging to churches in this City; one of this class he arrested yesterday; District Attorney Phelps, Recorder Hackett, and Judge Sutherland were always anxious for the prosecution of these cases, and aided him in every way in their power; he did not, however, obtain the same assistance from the Assistant District Attorneys, who seemed indisposed to prosecute such cases; the witness had been frequently offered large sums of money to abandon certain prosecutions, but he was afterward unable to bring them to trial; he instanced a case where a "Dr." Tilden was arrested for malpractice, but the man was discharged after a short detention without being brought to trial; he also caused the arrest of Frank Leslie for suffering improper advertisements to be printed in his paper, but he was never brought to justice either; a man named Zigler, a sexton in a Catholic church, was now in the Penitentiary for printing improper books; these books were insidiously introduced into the best schools and seminaries in the land, and their evil effects were loudly complained of. The witness spoke strongly against the Clinton Medical Institute, demanding its suppression.

A communication was received from the Warden of the Penitentiary, showing that there were seventy-eight inmates there between the ages of twelve and sixteen. The committee then adjourned to next Friday.

THE RAPID TRANSIT COMMISSION.

NATURE OF THE PLANS SELECTED—THE COMMISSIONERS' WORK ALMOST DONE—THE REPORT TO BE SUBMITTED TO-DAY.

The Rapid-transit Commissioners were in session yesterday. At Monday's session they agreed to authorize the construction of rapid-transit railways by one or more of three plans, at the option of the companies having the right to construct the same. Having thus agreed upon three plans, they set to work to prepare the necessary specifications, a task of no little importance, and one which has taken up much of their valuable time. These specifications have been revised, but not so thoroughly as they desire; consequently the finishing touches will be given to their work to-day. The report will then be submitted to the public. The Commission are somewhat pleased because of the near completion of their work.

While the full text of the forthcoming report is not yet known, it is known that the three plans adopted are as follows: First, a plan for narrow streets. This provides for two elevated tracks in the centre of the street, with pillars or arches, the bases of which are placed at the curb to support the structure. Second, a plan which has been termed the "one-legged structure," or in other words, one like that now in operation in Greenwich street; and third, a plan for wide streets like Third avenue, wherein it is specified that the present car tracks shall be spanned by a double column of iron posts or pillars. One of these plans it will be noticed permits of the construction of an elevated road in the streets, set up on posts in the middle of the roadway at intervals of thirty-five feet apart. To support a track thus constructed would require no less than 296 pillars to the mile. This system cannot possibly leave the surface-road entirely unobstructed, and such a primitive plan can only have one recommendation, that of utility in construction. The middle of the carriageway of any street is always the part most useful, because the curbs are generally occupied by teams loading and unloading. Then, in Winter time, when the accumulations of snow and ice are thrown from the sidewalks and from the roadway, the street will be to all intents and purposes simply impassable. There was a necessity for adopting this plan, more because of its being in use now than anything else. Its construction being left optional with the companies may prevent its ever being built.

The plan most favored by the commission is the one by which the structure is supported by columns or arches, the bases of which are at either curb. In the report, this plan is recognized as the Gothic arch plan. By this plan it is proposed to erect iron ribs opposite each other and uniting over the centre of the street in the form of a Gothic arch, each transverse frame to be placed seventy-five feet apart. From the middle of these ribs a longitudinal iron truss extends from frame to frame, along which the floor beams to support the tracks are placed. The railroad is suspended, and the load is equally distributed on the exterior of the arches. To prevent any lateral swaying, the floor beams are connected diagonally, the whole being left open so as to prevent the accumulation of snow or other obstructions, and to avoid interference as far as possible with the light and ventilation of the streets. The Commissioners are of opinion that such a road would be of great practical benefit to the public. If built in accordance with the specifications, there is very small risk of an accident ever occurring. The more nearly perfect the road (whichever one is built) the greater the certainty with which trains can be worked upon it, and the quicker the passenger will be delivered at his destination. There is no reason why trains should not follow each other at no greater intervals than may be required to check the speed of one, so as to insure the safety of that immediately following it. The frequency of trains is an indispensable element of success in whatever kind of road may be constructed, for without it the wants of the people will not be met, at least not successfully. The Gilbert Company claim that their plans cover the greater part of the specifications. It is understood, however, that the selection of the plan which embraces most of the specifications will be left to the judgment of those who are prepared to invest their capital in the undertaking.

AN AGED CONVICT.

ELIZABETH, N. J., Oct. 5.—David S. Perry, seventy-five years of age, was sentenced in the General Quarter Sessions this morning to ten years in the State Prison with hard labor for abortion. He styled himself an evangelist, preached at times, practiced medicine, and kept a liquor saloon.

LAW REPORTS.

THE TAYLOR WILL CASE.

DECISION BY JUDGE DONOHUE—OTHER COUNSEL SUBSTITUTED FOR RUFUS F. ANDREWS.

Recently a motion was made before Judge Donohue, in Supreme Court, Chambers, on behalf of Mrs. Laura S. Taylor, widow of James B. Taylor, to substitute Wingate & Callen as her counsel, in place of Rufus F. Andrews, who has acted as her legal adviser in the litigations which have continued since 1871 respecting the will and estate of Mr. Taylor. The application for a substitution was contested on several grounds, among others, it being alleged that Mrs. Taylor was in the habit of consulting clairvoyants, and that she was unable to act with sound judgment in relation to her litigation, and that Mr. Andrews had advanced her funds to pay her legal expenses, and consequently had a lien on her papers. Yesterday Judge Donohue gave the following decision:

Mrs. Taylor asks leave to substitute an attorney in place of Rufus Andrews, her personal attorney. It is objected on behalf of Mr. Andrews that, first, he cannot be substituted without cause shown; second, that he then can only be substituted on such terms as are just; that such terms should be the payment of all the amounts due him for costs, counsel fees, and some advances he has made outside of the suits; third, that Mrs. Taylor is not a person to be intrusted with the direction of her affairs, because she consults and has consulted the spirits for some time past, and supposes she acts under their direction. Before disposing of the question raised, I desire to notice a statement in the opposing papers, that Mrs. Taylor, if a change is to be made, expects and hopes there would be political influence obtained. Such statements on this motion are entirely out of place, and, in my judgment, unworthy of counsel. If the evidence of such influence in lawsuits exists, there is a place and way in which redress for it may be had, and to that tribunal the facts should be submitted; but the mere assertion of counsel cannot, on the motion, deprive Mrs. Taylor of her rights. Those rights are—first, where a party has differed, as here, with her attorney, the court will not permit one of its officers to insist on the right of retaining the management of the case against her wish; second, as to any advances outside of the lawsuits, there is no lien either on the attorney's possession of her papers or her claims on her own suits; third, it is evident from the reiterated statements in the opposing affidavits, that the attorney knew that Mrs. Taylor had nothing but what the will gave her, or that she may get out of the estate. It would, therefore, be unjust and against good conscience for the attorney to claim the immediate payment for services which his own statement shows he knew must be paid out of future assets. The substitution must, therefore, be made on the party filing a stipulation that her interest in the estate, when realized, shall be subject to any judgment her attorney may obtain against her for the services for which he claims compensation. The allegation that Mrs. Taylor has acted under the advice of or in consultation with spirits, comes with poor grace from the counsel, who has, as he claims, acted for years on her information so obtained, and allowed her to do it. If he has deemed such communications of use heretofore, he shows no reason but her desire to change, why he does not think so now.

THE ODELL DIVORCE CASE.

THE COMPLAINT DISMISSED—DECISION BY JUDGE VAN BRUNT.

In the case in which Andrew J. Odell sought a divorce from Annie E. Odell, on the ground that she had at the time of her marriage with him another husband living, a decision given by Judge Van Brunt was filed yesterday in the Special Term of the Supreme Court. In 1844 the defendant was married to one William H. Tracy, who is still living, but on Oct. 17, 1873, a decree of divorce was entered in the Superior Court of Connecticut, dissolving the marriage between defendant and Tracy, and on the 19th of the same month, at New-Haven, the plaintiff and defendant were married. It was sought in the present case to impeach this decree of divorce, upon the grounds that it was obtained by the defendant by fraud, she not having acquired the necessary residence in Connecticut to enable her to obtain a divorce there, and that the decree did not show on its face that the Connecticut court had acquired jurisdiction of the subject of the action, or of the parties. Judge Van Brunt holds that if there was any fraud practiced upon the court in Connecticut the proofs show that the plaintiff was a party to it and could not now complain. Plaintiff knew what the laws of Connecticut were on the question of residence, knew the facts about the defendant's residence. She assisted at the consultations with the lawyer when the question of residence was discussed, and the application for the divorce was made at his solicitation; he expressed himself satisfied that the decree would be valid, and furnished the money to pay for the procurement of the divorce. It was unnecessary, however, to discuss the question of the residence of the defendant at the time of the obtainment of the decree, but consideration would be given to the objection raised to the validity of the decree. If that decree was binding upon the parties to it in the State of Connecticut it was binding upon them in every other State of the Union, and could not be questioned by them, and much less by a stranger to the record. The undisputed evidence showed that the decree was in strict conformity with the laws of Connecticut and the practice of its courts. It had been claimed by counsel for plaintiff that plaintiff's consent to his marriage with the defendant had been procured by fraud practiced upon him, and that, therefore, he was entitled to a divorce on that ground, but as no such cause of action was set up in the complaint this point would not be considered. The complaint would be dismissed, with costs.

CIVIL SUITS AGAINST H. B. CLAFLIN & CO.

In June last the firm of H. B. Claflin & Co., including Horace B. Claflin, John Claflin, Edward E. Ames, Horace Fairchild, William S. Dunn, Dexter N. Force, Daniel Robinson, and William H. Talcott, the buyer of the firm, were indicted in the United States Circuit Court for alleged concealment and transportation of smuggled goods, amounting to a total value of $750,000. John J. Donaldson, the other member of the firm, was not indicted, he having joined the firm after the commission of the alleged offense, or previous to January, 1874. Two civil suits have now been brought against the firm in the United States District Court, by United States District Attorney Bliss, in behalf of the Government. The suits are brought in accordance with the act of March, 1823, which provides that in cases of this kind the Government may recover from the parties double the amount of goods illegally received. Thus the two suits represent an aggregate of $1,500,000. The first is against the firm of H. B. Claflin & Co., omitting the name of J. J. Donaldson, and is to recover the sum of $940,000. The second suit includes the latter's name, and is brought to recover $560,000. In this suit it is alleged that this undervaluation was continued after Donaldson entered the firm, and with his knowledge, and in consequence he is made a party to the suit.

THE CASE OF CAPT. McCULLAGH.

On the 25th ult. Col. James E. Kerrigan failed to obey a subpœna from the Police Board, requiring him to appear as a witness in the case of Capt. McCullagh. On application of Superintendent Matsell, Judge Donohue granted an order on the 1st inst. directing Kerrigan to show cause in Supreme Court, Chambers, on the following day why he should not be punished for contempt and fined $50, in case he did not obey a subpœna issued by the Supreme Court to appear as a witness in Capt. McCullagh's case. A copy of this order and the subpœna were served upon Kerrigan at the Fifth Avenue Hotel by an officer but were disregarded by him. An attachment was then issued and he was brought before Judge Lawrence in Supreme Court, Chambers, yesterday. Mr. Charles F. McLean appeared on behalf of the Police Board, and Col. Kerrigan was represented by Mr. George W. Gibbons. After hearing evidence in the case Judge Lawrence said he would take the matter under advisement and reserve his decision. On application of Mr. McLean Judge Lawrence issued thirteen subpœnas for the attendance of witnesses in the case of Capt. McCullagh.

A JANITOR'S CLAIM AGAINST THE CITY.

In Part II. of the Court of Common Pleas, before Judge Joseph F. Daly, yesterday, the case in which Michael Carmody, who has been janitor of the Corporation Attorney's office since 1865, sued to recover $266 64 salary due him for September, October, and November, 1869, came on for trial. A written appointment of Carmody, signed by Charles G. Cornell, Street Commissioner, was offered in evidence, but was objected to on the ground that Mr. Cornell's signature had not been proved. Counsel for Carmody then made the point that no written appointment was necessary in a case like the present, in which the plaintiff had been recognized as an employe, and paid as such during the whole term of his service, except the months in question. It being held that a written appointment was necessary, Mr. Cornell's signature was proved by Mr. Charles T. McClenachan, Chief Bookkeeper of the Department of Public Works. It not appearing that the claim had been passed upon by the Controller, Counsel for the Corporation asked that the complaint be dismissed, contending that proof of the Controller having passed upon the claim was essential, and that a waiver of this proof made some time ago by the Corporation Counsel was not binding. The Court held adversely to this, and directed a verdict for Carmody for the full amount claimed, with interest, making $375 38.

TUESDAY, Oct. 5—P. M.

The impression prevailed generally on the street yesterday that when the ill-starred Missouri Pacific reached 28 it had touched bottom, but the events of to-day showed that this impression was entirely erroneous, the stock finding still a lower deep, and selling down to 23⅞. In the final dealings a recovery of about 3 ₩ cent. took place. By a typographical error we were made to say when speaking of this stock yesterday, that the dividend was "admitted to be paid," whereas the sentence should have read, "advertised to be paid," but the mistake was too obvious to create any misapprehension. Union Pacific continues to fraternize with Missouri Pacific in the decline, dropping to 61¾, and closing at only a fractional recovery. A decline of 5 ₩ cent. regular, and 6½ ₩ cent. seller 60, in New Jersey Central as compared with the closing quotations of yesterday occasioned much surprise and comment in stock circles, as did also a fall in Delaware, Lackawanna and Western from 119½ to 117¾. The former stock recovered nearly 2 and the latter 1 ₩ cent. in the final dealings. Outside of the four stocks mentioned, the general market exhibited much steadiness, and toward the close of business there was an improvement in prices and a firmer feeling prevailed. Western Union, after yielding slightly in sympathy with the decline in Missouri Pacific, afterward rallied and closed at the highest point of the day. Pacific Mail fluctuated between 35½ and 36, and closed at the higher figure. Lake Shore declined from 54¼ to 53½, but at the lower price good buyers appeared, and their purchases carried the stock up to 54. The other Western shares declined early in the day, but subsequently became firm and recovered most of the early loss. Erie was firm at 17@17⅛.

The money market was easy, and borrowers on call supplied their requirements during the greater portion of the day at 2@2½ ₩ cent. on ordinary Stock Exchange collaterals. Late in the afternoon some business was reported at 3@4 ₩ cent., the advance being probably the result of the shifting of loans incidental to the decline in stocks. On Government bonds there were large offerings of capital at 2 ₩ cent. Prime mercantile paper is quoted at 5½ to 7 ₩ cent., the supply in the hands of note brokers being small. The amount of National Bank notes received for redemption at Washington to-day was $420,000. The Controller of the Currency has called upon the National Banks for a report of their condition on Oct. 1.

The foreign advices reported £129,000 bullion gone into the Bank of England on balance to-day. Consols at London advanced to 94⅛@94¼ for money and 94¼@94 5-16 for the account. United States bonds were steady, 1865s, old, closing at 106¼@106½, 1867s at 107¼@107½, 10-40s at 104½@104¾, and new 5s at 104⅝@104¾. Erie common advanced to 15¼@15⅜ and the preferred to 32; the latter closed at 31@31½. The increased firmness of the London market is attributed to the reports of a peaceful settlement of existing difficulties between Great Britain and China. The steamship Main, which sailed from Southampton for this port to-day, has on board £50,000 sterling in gold. The sterling exchange market was heavy and lower early in the day, and the advance in gold checked business. The leading drawers reduced their asking rates from $4 79½ to $4 78½ for 60 days sterling, and from $4 83½ to $4 82½ for sight, but sales were made as low as $4 77½ and $4 81½. In the afternoon the market became firm and business was done at $4 78 and $4 82, the demand increasing on the fall in gold, and the easier loaning rates. Gold opened firm at 117⅜, and advanced to 117⅝ in the early dealings. This brought out sales of "long" gold, which depressed the price to 117⅛, the market closing at the lowest point. Cash gold after loaning at 1-32@3-64 ₩ diem for use, was offered down to 2@4 ₩ cent., and still later free of interest.

Government bonds were firm at the early boards, but prices yielded slightly in the closing dealings in sympathy with gold. The leading dealers reported an active counter business, the demand coming chiefly from individual investors. In railroad mortgages there was no especial change, save a decline of 1 ₩ cent. in Ohio and Mississippi Second, until near the close, when Union Pacific Sinking Funds fell off from 90⅞ to 89½; Firsts advanced to 104¼ and later declined to 103¾, Land Grants dropping to 99½. Central Pacifics advanced to 107@107¼. New Jersey Central Consolidated Firsts were firm at 107½@107¾, Harlem Firsts at 113⅞@114, and Chicago and North-western consolidated coupon gold bonds at 87½; do. currency sold at 97½, and Firsts at par. In State bonds Tennessee old advanced to 52½.

The exports of domestic produce and miscellaneous goods from this port for the week ending to-day are $5,837,619, against $6,866,219 for the corresponding week in 1874, and $8,378,130 in 1873. THE TIMES BY THE FAST MAIL TRAINS.

The Fast Mail trains to the West now enable subscribers to obtain THE TIMES within a radius of 500 miles from New-York City on the day of its publication, and as far West as Chicago within twenty-four hours. By this arrangement THE SUNDAY TIMES has largely increased the area of its circulation, and can be purchased before noon in towns as remote from New-York as Syracuse and Harrisburg. The demand for this journal is already very large, and in order to insure attention notice should be given at once of any increase in the orders from newsdealers.

Reports from Ohio continue to be reasonably assuring. Canvasses of the doubtful counties lead the Republican managers to expect a decisive majority for "Hayes and Honesty." As the day of election draws near, the financial question gains more and more attention, and all others become subordinate to it. No more earnest campaign has ever been waged in the State since the war than the present. It is a hopeful sign for the future that the people of Ohio are ready to give ear to a discussion of the kind that has been going on for two months. It is not an ordinary one. It involves not only material interests, but moral considerations of the highest importance, and largely by the courage and good sense of Gen. WOODFORD, of this State, the canvass has been turned explicitly on this class of considerations. Nothing could exceed the gravity of the issues involved, and the result will be looked forward to with great anxiety in every part of the country, nor will it be without a very serious influence on our credit abroad.

Some curious testimony was given yesterday in the course of the investigation into the management of our prisons. The delightful immunity of such offenders as Coroner CROKER from the inconveniences and restraints imposed on ordinary prisoners at the Tombs, was very clearly acknowledged by the officials. It will be remembered that CROKER was allowed to go free for some time; and it really was of small consequence that he was so, since his freedom was not at all interfered with in prison. It only needs that a man accused of murder should be a friend of JOHN KELLY to turn the Tombs for him into a private residence, where he goes and comes, receives visitors, and transacts business at will, and this pleasant indulgence seems to have been a part of a regular system, in which all the officials acquiesced. It is not singular that such management should rob the law of many of its terrors, or that the last Grand Jury should have presented twenty indictments for murder in the first degree. Indeed, with proper political connections, murder in New-York is as safe and profitable an avocation as any that Mr. KELLY's friends are given to.

It appears as if the authorities of the Dominion of Canada have finally made up their minds to deal in earnest with the question of the Guibord burial. It is, perhaps, a matter of small moment whether the right of interment in a Catholic cemetery does or does not rest with the decision of the Bishops, and the amount of trouble that has been made in this case seems to Americans out of all proportion to the interests originally involved. But the tribunals having jurisdiction have declared the law to require the burial of GUIBORD, and what the Government must now decide is whether law can be enforced in Montreal against the opposition of the Roman Catholic clergy. Of course, the Government can admit of but one decision to this question, and it is now reported that a picked force from the Governor General's Guard is to be sent from Ottawa to assist in preserving order at the Guibord funeral.

A party of inflation and "labor reform," led by WENDELL PHILLIPS, and marshaled by Gen. BUTLER, is something quite worth while, and we hope that the intention said to be entertained in Massachusetts of getting one up will not be abandoned. Its operations would do no serious harm. It would draw about equally from both of the principal parties, and would not much change the result of the election, and it would give the country a chance to see how much folly and demagoguery pure and simple could accomplish in the Bay State. A community specially honest and intelligent, as that of Massachusetts is, nevertheless harbors a certain number of knaves and fools, and probably no way of taking an approximate census of these classes would equal in accuracy the running of an inflation ticket, with PHILLIPS at the head and BUTLER for manager in chief.

It ought to be matter of congratulation that our neighbors in Mexico are going to do all they can to insure a proper representation of their resources and industries in the Centennial Exhibition. It is relatively as much to our interest as to theirs that this should be done. Mexico is in many regards a remarkable country, and under immense difficulties has made progress of which most people in the United States have a very inadequate conception. There is every reason to believe that the commercial intercourse between the two nations might with mutual profit be greatly extended. The full exhibition of Mexican products at the Centennial will go a great ways toward furthering this desirable end.

The first day of registration for the year shows a decrease of about fourteen per cent., as compared with last year. The figures are 35,898 last year, and 31,091 this year—a falling off to the extent of 4,807. A light registry is not usually considered an unpromising augury of Republican success, though it will be observed that in the Republican Assembly Districts—the Seventh, Eleventh, and Twentieth—the decrease is quite as large as in the others. The prevailing dissatisfaction among the voting masses of the Democratic Party has undoubtedly something to do with the diminished returns of registration.

PROGRESSIVE GOVERNMENT.

The most useful political organization which has been seen for some years, in this or any other country, is that which has been devised by the Democratic Party. It is made to suit everybody's taste. For those who are in favor of "hard money," there is the New-York platform. For those who prefer paper money, there are the platforms of Ohio and Pennsylvania. Local politics have been equally well adapted to the progressive spirit of the age. In New-York State, we have Mr. TILDEN put forward to catch the votes of the "respectable classes." But in the Metropolis of the country, affairs are left in the hands of JOHN KELLY, who is simply another Boss TWEED, without TWEED's careless good nature and prodigal generosity toward his supporters. Respectability can "follow TILDEN's gonfalon," to borrow the beautiful phrase of the Evening Post. The rowdies and scalawags can range themselves round JOHN KELLY. All the worst rascals of the Tweed gang are being carefully hunted up, and comfortable places are being set aside for them. The press has been most ingeniously managed. A glorified picture of TILDEN, apparently drawn by himself, appears every other day in what are called the illustrated papers. Pretty nearly all the newspapers in the City are on his side, just as they were on the side of TWEED. The entire position must often make TILDEN laugh in his sleeve as he surveys it. No one knows better than he what sort of City Government we shall have when Boss KELLY has everything in his own hands. We venture to say that the people would be glad to change it, after a year or two of trial, for that of TWEED and SWEENY in its worst days.

If anybody were to ask Mr. TILDEN privately whether he thought it was a right proceeding to remove Recorder HACKETT from the bench, he would answer no. If he were asked why Surrogate HUTCHINGS should be thrown over, he would be obliged to admit that there was no better reason for the step than that JOHN KELLY wanted the office for one of the sots and loafers who followed his "gonfalon." Has either of these men failed in his duty? Not at all—no one pretends it. Recorder HACKETT has sent a great many of Boss KELLY's intimate friends to jail for burglary, murder, and other crimes, and JOHN KELLY is determined to get "level" with the Recorder on that account. That is all there is of it. But, it may be said by people outside of the State, "Surely the citizens of New-York will not stand by quietly and see such a disgrace put upon their City?" We are not so sure of that. We have seen the people of New-York submit to a rule which made their City infamous all over the world, and they only threw it off under the pressure of the shame which the exposure of the scandal necessarily occasioned. Since then, the Democrats have been steadily gaining ground. The Tombs prison now affords an example of the way in which they propose to manage our "institutions." Brutalities are practiced in that prison which are worthy of the Spanish Inquisition. And the men who practice them are drawn from the very same class which Boss KELLY now proposes to put in all the chief positions of public trust. There are a few "dummies" in the foreground to give the gang a decent look. But the bulk of the persons now being selected by KELLY for office are scoundrels of the lowest type. We pledge our faith that this is a true statement, and we hold ourselves ready at any moment to prove it.

But if we produced the list of KELLY's protégés which we have had by us for weeks past, with all their exploits fully described, who would pay any heed to it? What do people care about the persons who are to become part of the new "reformed" Government? They want a change. They are tired of seeing the Republicans always on the staircase. When SHERIDAN had lost a lot of money one night at a gaming table, he happened to meet on his way down stairs a man who was tying his shoe-string. He gave him a ferocious kick, and exclaimed—"Confound you, you are always tying your shoe." The Republican Party is pretty much in the position of that man. It is being kicked because the people have lost their money. There has been a panic; there is still a general and grievous depression in trade. Therefore, down with the Republican Party. Let us place JOHN KELLY and the scum of the City in authority over us. And that is about what will be done. We hear some of our Republican friends say that they are quite sure of winning the coming election. They little understand the true nature of the forces which are at work in our midst.

ANOTHER REPORT ON CANAL FRAUDS.

The Canal Investigating Commissioners have presented their fifth report. It refers to the somewhat well-worn subject of GEORGE D. LORD's repair contract on Section 14 of the Erie Canal, and the fraudulent awards made to LEWIS J. BENNETT and JOHN HAND for work which ought to have been done by LORD under his bargain with the State. According to the original contract made in 1868, LORD was to receive $44,000 a year for keeping in repair the canal section above named. This included the dredging and removal of deposits from the Black Rock Harbor and other basins in the City of Buffalo. The contract had hardly been concluded before the Legislature began the first of a series of appropriations, designed to cover precisely the same work which the State had already agreed to pay GEORGE D. LORD for performing. By 1870 these appropriations had reached the sum of $70,500, and the single element of really extra work covered by the contracts made in pursuance of the action of the Legislature was the dredging of the Ohio Basin to the depth of thirteen feet, instead of ten feet, as prescribed in LORD's contract.

LORD continued to draw his $44,000 a year from the State, leaving HAND and his partners, who received the extra contracts, to take $58,000 worth of work off his shoulders. Not content, however, with this steal, LORD hit the happy idea of using his position as legislator to procure for HAND some extra allowances on the ground that his contract was unremunerative. Of these awards LORD was to receive, through one JOHN KILEY, of Rochester, two-thirds of the whole amount. This was about the proportion which TWEED and his fellow-conspirators used to receive out of the fraudulent claims concocted for them by Ring tradesmen. HAND, in whose simplicity the Governor's Commission have a truly edifying confidence, made up his list of items pretty much after the fashion of GARVEY or INGERSOLL. He was, however, shrewd enough to allow his partner, BENNETT, to do most of the dirty work for him. The Commissioners, at least, insist on placing that worthy in the foreground. The Tweed Legislature of 1871 lent itself readily to LORD's little scheme, and the Democratic Canal Commissioners, to whom the matter was referred, asked very few questions, but promptly voted some $30,000 "for the relief of JOHN HAND." Of this amount, with accumulated interest added, only $3,000 found its way into the hands of BENNETT. Canal Appraiser DAVIS took $7,600 as his share of the spoil, and the voracious Lord family retained the rest.

These facts, with sundry other details, were presented to the readers of THE TIMES six months ago. So were the facts in regard to the second award, amounting to thirty-six thousand dollars, "for the relief of JOHN HAND." Here, then, was certain work which GEORGE D. LORD was paid $44,000 for performing, for which the State was in the first place induced to make extra appropriations to the amount of $58,500. Then, on certain false and fraudulent representations that these contracts, which ought never to have been made at all, were unremunerative, a further sum of $70,500 was awarded for the relief of the suffering contractors. The State was thus cheated out of $129,000 on a few minor canal contracts by either the willful neglect or the corruption of its own officers. Of course, these fraudulent awards were not made without legislators and canal officials participating in the spoil. Of the former class, FRANKLIN A. ALBERGER appears from the testimony of BENNETT to have received various sums amounting to $2,000 on account of "services" performed in connection with the Hand legislation. BENNETT had the true instinct of a canal contractor. He began to give money to ALBERGER because his firm were strangers in Buffalo, and he thought they "ought to give something to politics." He continued the process of giving because, as a representative from Buffalo, ALBERGER "would generally get an appropriation," which, as BENNETT naïvely adds, "I always considered was worth something to me."

The only other point in the report which calls for remark is its reference to the passage by the infamous Democratic Legislature of 1871 of what is called "one of the most notable specimens of predatory legislation on the statute-book." This was a close imitation of the Board of Audit section of TWEED's County Tax Levy of the preceding year. As the Commissioners put it, "under this act every sort of fraudulent, unlawful, and foolish claim which had ever been rejected by the auditing officers of the State had the breath of life breathed into it. Without any investigation of their character and validity—disregarding the previous decisions of the auditing officers—the Legislature pronounced them all good and ordered them all paid." This act was, of course, utilized for his own advantage by the indefatigable GEORGE D. LORD. He had succeeded during the previous session of 1870 in getting an award of $40,000 for work which ought to have been performed as part of his repair contract, and these items, added to his gains under the Hand relief bills, and the extra contracts for dredging which were awarded to him as if his repair contract had never existed, make an aggregate steal on a very limited section of canal work of $185,000. This is a trifle compared with the plunder of millions perpetrated in New-York City, and for which we are beginning to discover that nobody was responsible. But it is stealing, nevertheless, and the cause of public honesty will receive a substantial benefit should its detection conduct GEORGE D. LORD and his confederates to State Prison.

ST. COLUMBUS.

According to the Cologne Gazette, the Jesuits are again urging the canonization of CHRISTOPHER COLUMBUS—a proposal which was first made at the time of the Ecumenical Council in 1870. There is no doubt that the stout old Admiral would make a very creditable saint—as saints go. He gave a new world, not merly to CASTILE and LEON, but to the human race, and that this was really a more useful deed than spending a lifetime on the top of a pillar most persons at the present time will gladly admit. In point of piety he probably compares favorably with the general run of saints, and if he was not so nobly unselfish as St. FRANCIS XAVIER, or so fervently devout as St. FRANCIS of Assisi, he was certainly an earnest believer in Christianity. Just at present, when it is the fashion to underrate the achievements of COLUMBUS by claiming that a quantity of vague Scandinavians anticipated him in the discovery of America, his canonization would be a timely compliment; and as the present King of Spain cannot, in accordance with the regulations of the Spanish Navy, give any official promotion to the dead Admiral, he will doubtless share in the desire that he should receive what may be called the brevet rank of sainthood from the Roman Church.

Still, the canonization of COLUMBUS simply because he was a great discoverer would be a new departure for the Church. If COLUMBUS is made a saint, why should not CARTIER and CHAMPLAIN, DE SOTO, CORTEZ, and PIZARRO receive a like honor? African as well as American exploration would also be entitled to its saints. There was CAILLIE, the Frenchman, the first European to reach Timbuctoo. Surely, we ought to have St. CAILLIE as well as St. COLUMBUS. St. SPEKE would make a most respectable middle-class saint, and in time we might have St. SCHWEINFURTH and St. BURTON—although the latter at present is understood to have a strong prejudice against saints. Of course, the Church of Rome could not very well seize on a Protestant explorer and forcibly make a saint of him; but then, as a rule, African travelers have not been very decided in their theological views, and it might easily become the fashion with them to give in their adhesion to Rome if they had a reasonable expectation of being canonized after the fever had finished them.

If COLUMBUS is to be made a saint, the present is just the time for the process. When we have our Centennial celebration next Summer, it will be a great satisfaction to our Roman Catholic fellow-citizens to remember that it required a real saint to discover a country fit for the Great Republic. Moreover, the canonization of the great Admiral will cause us to remember that America had an existence and a history before the Declaration of Independence was promulgated. We shall be so thoroughly interested in that demonstrative bird, the American eagle, that we shall be inclined to forget the man who first discovered its future eyrie, and his elevation to sainthood will do more to revive our remembrance of him than would even a life of COLUMBUS by Mr. ABBOTT, or a poem on the discoverer of America by Timothy Titcomb.

A USEFUL INFANT.

An entirely new kind of baby has been discovered near Erie, Penn. This interesting phenomenon is a poor but honest infant, of a little more than one year of age, and apparently of the female sex. The discoverer, it is true, unhesitatingly calls the infant "a girl baby," but cautious people will hardly care to class it among customary girl babies until it is quite certain that the infant is not more feline than feminine. It is represented to be a well-made baby, provided with blue eyes, yellow hair, and other desirable improvements, and to be unusually temperate in its indulgence in tears and colic. The distinguishing characteristic of this singular infant is its passion for the pleasures of the chase in connection with the common domestic mouse. On awaking in the morning, the infant mouse-catcher emerges from its cradle and takes up a position near a convenient mouse-hole. Fixing its gaze upon the hole, it watches in perfect silence and with feline patience for its game. The seductive rattle and the alluring toothring have no power to distract its attention, and it is temporarily oblivious to the existence of the maternal attractions. In time its patience is rewarded by the appearance of a mouse. Instantly the unhappy beast is seized by the infantile fingers, and its neck is squeezed with a skill that would reflect credit upon the most experienced cat. A low murmur of pleasure escapes from the successful infant, which bears a close resemblance to a feline purr, while at the same time a curious tremor agitates its body, which we may interpret as a futile effort to wag an imaginary tail.

In time the infant drops the flaccid and breathless mouse, and is then ready to listen to suggestions as to the propriety of breakfast. If disturbed, however, while still engaged in pinching its prey, it evinces anger, and places the mouse for safe-keeping in that primitive infantile pocket, its mouth. Frequently when capturing its prey, this curious domestic Nimrod is severely bitten, but no matter how deeply the teeth may penetrate, it neither cries nor shows the slightest uneasiness, although it is acutely sensitive to pain from other sources, and, like an ordinary infant, often expresses in loud tones its suspicion of the existence of pins in inappropriate localities. Its parents have in vain tried to wean it from mice, but the persistent infant has refused to be comforted when deprived of the excitement of the chase. It is fortunate for the peace of the household that the supply of mice continues to be abundant, and that there has hitherto been no necessity of making new mouse-holes, or of stocking the house with additional mice. It must be evident, however, that in time so skillful an infant will bring about a scarcity of game; and in that case its parents will have to fall back either upon artificial mouse-culture or soothing syrup in large doses.

Enough has been said of the characteristics of this abnormal infant to show that it is essentially feline in certain of its desires and actions. It would be interesting to know if its resemblance to the cat extends to other matters besides the capture of mice. Investigations in this direction should be made. The infant should be left alone in a room with pans of milk and roasted chicken exposed on a table; and a watch should be kept to see if it steals the cream and gnaws the chicken. It would also be well to ascertain if it shows any disposition to get up in the night and sit on the fence, or the ridgepole of the house, and there exercise its lungs; and whether it evinces that singular fondness for concealing itself under the parlor sofa which is innate in the usual cat. If it does these things, there can be no possible doubt that, though it is an ostensible infant, it is a cat. Its fondness for mouse-catching is alone sufficient to create a strong suspicion that it is morally a cat; but still it is possible that in this matter it is merely imitating some cat for which it has an extraordinary fondness and respect, and that it is really a human infant of remarkable imitative powers.

In any event there can be no doubt that the example of the mouse-catching infant ought to be extensively followed by all well-regulated infants. If in every household children under two or three years of age could be induced to spend the day at mouse-holes, they would not only accomplish a great benefit to humanity in extirpating mice, but they would be occupying their time much more creditably to themselves than is their usual custom. It is impossible to compare the average infant, who clamors for food at improper hours, and indulges in colic at the most inconvenient moments, with this quiet and industrious destroyer of mice, without perceiving that the latter is leading a far nobler and more useful existence. Its memoir should be written and placed in the hands of every infant of three months old and upward, and the lesson to go and do likewise should be instilled into every infantile mind by all mothers who desire the best welfare of themselves and their children.

AMUSEMENTS.

THE SEASON AT WALLACK'S.

The regular season at Wallack's Theatre was last evening entered upon with the usual agreeable accompaniments. The first of the Fall and Winter performances at this house is always considered as an occasion of particular moment, and the audience gathered to enjoy it may fairly be regarded as equal in point of numbers and, so to say, in point of quality, to any assemblage brought together in this City by the production of a great play or the presentation of a great artist. Yesterday's entertainment now takes its place with its predecessors. An extremely large and brilliant audience was at hand; a capital programme was admirably interpreted, and everybody remained to the close of the proceedings, that is to say, until within a few minutes of midnight. If the fruits of the season are in keeping with its promise, there will be no falling off from the traditional record of Wallack's Theatre. This means that agreeable and innocuous works will succeed each other as rapidly as the spectators may demand; that as efficient and complete a company as can be formed will be handled with faultless discretion as to the assignment of parts, and, in brief, that nothing will be neglected to maintain the reputation of an establishment the high position of which may justly be ascribed to excellent management. The Fall series of representations was begun with "The Overland Route." Mr. Tom Taylor's comedy, which has not been given for about eighteen years, is strongly constructed, though upon a rather slight foundation. The story, in fact, is hardly vigorous enough for a piece of equal length, and its incidents are more farcical than the word comedy applied to their collocation suggests, but all of them are brought about with considerable dexterity, and they are connected with so much deftness that, under the influence of their representation at least, they appear neither unnatural nor infelicitous. "The Overland Route" literally abounds in amusing characters and scenes. No single adventure and no single personage fairly predominates, and hence, while it is undeniable that the impression produced is never really deep, the piece, from first to last, affords hearty amusement. We shall not endeavor to reduce to writing the half dozen somewhat slender plots which the dramatist has deftly welded into a symmetrical whole. Suffice it to say that the action is carried on, during two acts, aboard a Pacific and Oriental Steam-ship Company's steamer; that, in act the third, the voyagers of the Simoon find themselves ashore on a coral reef under the Southern Cross; and that the numerous misfortunes growing out of cases of mistaken identity, assumed maidenhood, fancied widowhood, and rascality in disguise—none of which are productive of anything more damaging than uproarious merriment—lead up to a happy dénouement. One great merit dwells in "The Overland Route": the comedy provides very effective parts for most of the members of Mr. Wallack's company, and being, as already set forth, an exceedingly well-balanced play, it shows to unusual advantage the strength of that body. Mr. John Gilbert, possibly, might have a rôle in which something more of sympathy could accompany him, but that artist's associates are all very happily suited. Mr. Montague and Mr. Beckett are particularly favored. The former portrays a young gentleman who has every good quality that virtue can bestow, combined with every grace that a not too severe mode of life can give, and lounges through the piece with admirable ease and impudence, only departed from when a man's life is to be saved by jumping overboard; when a friend's wife is to be protected from villainy; or when the passengers of a sinking vessel are to be rescued by a manly head and hand. Mr. Beckett assumes the rôle of a comical landsman who has run away from his wife; who becomes reconciled to her after a seven years' separation to prove to a peripatetic detective that he is not the felon he is supposed to be, and who, whether suffering from sea-sickness on ship-board, or diffusing jollity when on the dry land of the coral reef, is always immensely funny. Mr. Gilbert's character—that of an aged and decrepid beau, and a decidedly unscrupulous individual to boot—was, of course, a very elaborate and finished picture, but we have become so used to this performer as a representative of genial and venerable types that we half missed his familiar voice and manner. An excellent sketch of a superannuated East Indian gallant is to be credited to Mr. W. Herbert, and an equally praiseworthy sketch of an irascible military man was offered by Mr. J. W. Shannon. Among the ladies Miss Effie Germon bore off the honors, Miss Dyas' performance being a little deficient in buoyancy. More interest than was taken in Miss Germon's efforts, however, was called forth by the first appearance on the stage of Miss Geraldine Maye, who at once secured the favor of the audience by her youth, the freshness and naturalness of her style, and her comely face. A kindly greeting dispelled in an instant the nervousness attendant upon a debut, and her love-scenes with Mr. Montague were marked by rare sweetness and ingenuousness. Miss Maye was loudly applauded during the evening, and her earliest hearing may with propriety be regarded as foreshadowing a long career of usefulness in a profession wherein talent is daily becoming scarcer and scarcer. It only remains to supplement this hurried notice by chronicling the fact that the stage attire of "The Overland Route" is of passing beauty. A finer set than that showing the poop-deck of the Simoon in mid-ocean has never been exhibited, and the view of the wreck is so cleverly managed as to be positively startling. The programme at Wallack's is to be unchanged until further notice.

THE BROOKLYN THEATRE.

A large and fashionable audience filled the Brooklyn Theatre Monday evening, on the occasion of the reopening for the regular season under the new management. The play was "Frou-Frou," and its rendering, making due allowance for the inevitable shortcomings of an opening night, was nearly if not quite up to the standard which had been promised. The titular rôle in the play was filled by Miss Agnes Ethel, a lady whose dramatic abilities are too well known to the public to call for lengthened description here. It is sufficient to say that her acting on Monday, although studied and forcible, was in some respects lacking in the qualities which, in a character like that of Frou-Frou, are most necessary. The warmth, the gayety, the light-hearted frivolity which are so thoroughly interwoven with the heroine's whole nature, are either altogether wanting or clouded by a secret grief as uncalled for as its source is unimaginable. This, of course, applies to the earlier period of the drama, before the fatal steps are taken, and at the time when the characteristics which earned her her expressive sobriquet should have been in full vigor, and apparent even to the most careless spectator. The Frou-Frou with which the audience at the Brooklyn were made acquainted on Monday was that of a woman of culture and refinement, rather less given to frivolity than the majority of her sex, and with a disposition ever tempered by a sweet and tremulous sadness which runs through her whole life and forms a distinctive trait of her character. It was a very graceful and impressive picture, but, pleasant as it was, it was scarcely Frou-Frou. The other leading parts in the piece were in the hands of competent artists. Miss Marie Gordon gave form to the pure womanly spirit of Louise and her lasting affection for her blighted friends with subdued but truthful fervor, and Mr. Frederick Robinson brought to the personation of the injured Sartorys all the masculine attributes with which the character is stamped. Miss Ida Vernon made a very charming Baroness, and gave to each of the features in that seductive and amusement-loving person its just prominence and force. Mr. Eben Plympton, as Comte De Valreas, the gay Lothario of the drama, fulfilled the Baroness' description of him to the letter—"a boy, generous, high-spirited, and loving—but a boy." The part of Pauline, the faithful servant, was noticeable for the excellent acting of Miss Roberta Norwood, while the peculiarly Parisian naughtiness of Brigard, the ever-youthful father, found a capable exponent in Mr. Thomas E. Morris. The setting of the play was all that could be desired, the elegance and good taste which invariably distinguish the productions of Messrs. Shook & Palmer being everywhere observable. "Frou-Frou" will be performed until further notice.

BRIEF MENTION.

Massachusetts Democrats welcomed Judge J. G. Abbott home from Europe with a dinner, on Saturday. Forty were present. Charles Levi Woodbury, presided, and said that their honored guest had had opportunities to see the effete despotisms of the Old World. Of course, I favor a sound currency, though I differ with you in the opinion that the financial question is the leading one in our politics. I consider administrative reform, and the limiting of the Federal Government to its constitutional powers, as the paramount issues of the day."

MASSACHUSETTS POLITICS.

THE PROHIBITIONISTS AND LABOR REFORMERS — THE FORMER THREATEN TO DEFEAT RICE — WISER COUNSELS EXPECTED TO PREVAIL—THE TEN-HOUR MEN TALKING OF WENDELL PHILLIPS OR GEN. BUTLER FOR A CANDIDATE.

From Our Own Correspondent.

BOSTON, Monday, Oct. 4, 1875.

Two more political conventions are to be held in this State before the campaign can be said to be fairly opened. In ordinary times these would excite little attention, they being of factions whose influence is not generally very strong; but this year, owing to the peculiar standing of the two great parties, and the turnover on the last election day, they are awaited with considerable concern. They are the Prohibitionists' and Labor Reformers' Conventions, and both are to be held on Wednesday, the former in this city, the latter in Worcester.

It is in the Prohibitory Convention that the greatest interest centres. Last year the Prohibitionists were strong enough, it will be recalled, to control the Republican Convention and nominate their ticket, the result of which was the election of Gaston, as is clearly proved by the fact that the remainder of the State ticket elected was Republican. This year it was said early in the campaign, by the most influential of the Prohibitionists, that Talbot must be run again, and in the event of his defeat in the convention his supporters would bolt and run him independently. When Mr. Talbot withdrew his name later on in the campaign, and there was a prospect that Mr. Rice would have a substantial following, these same Prohibitionists threatened to put an independent ticket in the field, should he get the nomination, and if they could not elect it, at all events defeat Mr. Rice. Mr. Rice has now been nominated, and the Prohibitionists are preparing to carry out their threatened programme. It is not denied that the placing of a third ticket in the field by the Prohibitionists, who are largely, in fact, almost all, voters in the Republican ranks, when their hobby-horse does not carry them off to a side party, would considerably injure the prospects of Mr. Rice and the Republican ticket, and if generally supported by Prohibitionists, give aid and comfort to the Democratic Party, possibly resulting in the election of their ticket. And so it is that this convention is awaited with unusual interest.

But this convention was feared just before the Republican Convention more than now. Since the nomination of Mr. Rice, and the public declaration of the leading men in the Loring and Adams movements to abide by the decision at Worcester, and work heartily for the success of the Republican ticket, many Prohibitionists have declared their determination to act likewise, and the men who have furnished the most money for the prohibitory campaigns have refused to put their hands in their pockets this time, declaring that the present emergency demands the pushing aside of local issues and the effort of all honest Republicans, and believers in the principles of the Republican Party as against those of the Democratic Party, to bring Massachusetts to where she belongs on the Republican side in season for the Presidential struggle just ahead. With these latter ex-Gov. Talbot agrees, and his advice to his prohibitory friends is to hold fast to their principles, but let the present License law have a fair trial, and do not aid in electing a Democratic Administration in this State at this time, and so sacrifice everything for spite. The prospect now is that the Conservatives and Radicals will fight for the control of the Wednesday convention, and that if a third ticket should be nominated the sound-headed, thinking men among the Prohibitionists, who are not prepared to throw every political principle overboard for their pet hobby, will not support it, but act with the Republican Party.

The Labor Reformers are wretchedly poor, but they are mad, and mean to draw all they can from both the prominent parties. Their great end in view is a ten-hour law. They are hoping to draw into their net the rag-money men who were so promptly kicked out into the cold by the Democrats at their convention, and they fancy they can make capital among the working men by the cry of war against capital and monopolies, and charging the hard times to the money power, and the talk against rag-money. There is a movement to put Wendell Phillips in nomination for the Governorship, and another in favor of Gen. Butler, whose rag-money theories are very pleasing to this little faction. Their convention will be interesting, quite entertaining, but hardly important. And if they carry out their programme to put in nomination a State ticket on a rag-money platform, we may have our curiosity satisfied as to how many supporters Gen. Butler and Wendell Phillips' rag-money theory really has in Massachusetts.

The Republicans propose to push the campaign with vigor. Their new State Central Committee, enlarged by the addition of Dawes, Judge Hoar, ex-Gov. Washburn, John M. Forbes, and others of their stamp, appointed in the convention by Vice President Wilson, have met and organized for work, and it is a part of the programme to hold campaign public meetings in different sections of the State, and bring out the speakers, while trusty agents are to be sent into the rural districts to make the voters acquainted with the Republican candidate, and to circulate documents and political tracts. Mr. Rice himself may be induced to take the stump, and if he does Gaston will do likewise, and we may have in Massachusetts a campaign quite like those of the old days. Hon. A. W. Beard, of this city, at the head of the State Central Committee, engineered the Rice movement, and he has the reputation of being one of the best organizers and quiet campaign managers in the State. It is his belief that Mr. Rice should go on the stump, though others hardly like the idea.

DEPARTMENT NOTES.

ARMY AND NAVY ORDERS—FINANCIAL—POSTMASTERS DISMISSED—A NATIONAL CEMETERY.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—Lieut. George A. Norris is ordered to the Hydrographic Office. Assistant Engineer George C. Neilson and Cadet Engineer R. G. Denig are ordered to examination for promotion. Gunner William E. Webbe is ordered to the New-York Navy-yard. A dispatch received at the Navy Department from Rear Admiral Almy, commanding the North Pacific Station, dated flag-ship Pensacola, Honolulu, Sept. 19, reports that it was his intention to sail from that port for Lower California and the western coast of Mexico on or about Sept. 25, to look after American interests in that locality, as affairs there seemed to be in a disturbed condition. He expects to arrive at San Francisco about the 1st of February. The health of the officers and crew of the Pensacola is good. Out of a complement of 400 persons but two deaths have occurred on that vessel during the past two years.

Major N. B. Sweitzer, Second Cavalry, has been detailed as a member of the board of officers appointed to meet in this city to decide upon a pattern and prepare specifications for the ambulance for Army use.

The following additional Postmasters have been dismissed for improper traffic in postage stamps: Hans F. Peterson, at Ephraim, San Pete County, Utah, and David W. Mercer, at Matfield Green, Chase County, Kan.

A general order from the War Department announces that the soldiers' burial ground at Finn's Point, N. J., opposite Fort Delaware, shall be known hereafter as a national cemetery.

THE CANAL INVESTIGATION.

FIFTH REPORT OF GOV. TILDEN'S COMMISSION.

ADDITIONAL REVELATIONS CONCERNING THE BLACK ROCK HARBOR SWINDLE—SERIOUS CHARGES AGAINST PROMINENT PERSONS—TESTIMONY OF GEORGE W. PHELPS AND OTHERS.

The following is a condensation of the fifth report of the Canal Investigation Commission, handed to the Governor yesterday. As will be at once seen, it seriously implicates a number of individuals who have heretofore escaped unscathed, among them Franklin A. Alberger, of Buffalo, and W. W. Jerome. A full history of Lord's operations under the notorious Skinner and Williams contracts will be given in a forthcoming report:

To His Excellency Samuel J. Tilden, Governor of the State of New-York:

BUFFALO CONTRACTS—LEGISLATIVE AWARDS.

On the 19th day of February, in the year 1868, the State entered into a contract with George D. Lord to keep in repair section No. 14 of the Erie Canal, for the term of four years and ten months, from and including the 1st day of March, 1868, for the sum of $44,000 a year. By a special provision of the contract, Mr. Lord was "to dredge out the deposits in the canal at Buffalo and Black Rock, including all the channels, slips, and basins belonging to the State; also to dredge out the deposits between Guard Lock and Black Rock Harbor, and between said harbor and railroad bridge." On the 12th of May, 1867, and the 9th of May, 1870, the Legislature appropriated an aggregate of $58,000 for the performance of different portions of the very work Lord had already contracted to do. The new contract went in the name of John Hand.

All the work to be performed under these appropriations, aggregating the sum of $70,500, except that of deepening the Ohio basin three feet below the datum depth of ten feet, at an estimated cost of $12,000, was already covered by the repair contract of George D. Lord.

In the Winter of 1871 George D. Lord solicited Mr. Lewis J. Bennett, one of the partners of John Hand, to apply to the Legislature, of which he had just been elected a member, for relief, under their several contracts with the State, upon the pretext that they had not been remunerative; Lord stipulating that he should receive two-thirds of whatever sum was allowed them, and that Bennett should not have any trouble or expense in procuring the appropriation. Mr. Bennett assented to this proposal, and, through his partner, the nominal contractor, John Hand, entered into a contract to pay to one John Kiley, a "dummy" of Lord's, two-thirds of the amount paid him by the State over the sum named in his original contract.

On the 19th of April, 1871, the Legislature passed the act authorizing the award, and fixing the scale of payments to be made under it.

Among the members voting for this act we find, very naturally, the name of George D. Lord. On the 7th of July succeeding the Board of Canal Commissioners, consisting at that time of W. W. Wright, John D. Fay, and George W. Chapman, met at Buffalo, and without taking any evidence of the expenses incurred in the prosecution of these contracts awarded to the claimants, upon the Ohio basin and the Erie basin contracts, the sum of $29,676 10, which was over and above the sum of $34,861 52, paid to them under their contracts.

The only witnesses examined were Lewis J. Bennett and John Hand, two of the claimants; William Richardson, a partner of Bennett; James J. Hayden, a fellow dredging contractor; J. F. Behn, at that time assistant engineer in charge of the work covered by the Hand contract, and Oliver Cornell, one of Bennett's workmen. Mr. Behn, the assistant engineer, was one-third proprietor of one of Bennett & Spaulding's dredges, called the Empire State. He paid for his interest $4,366 34, and had received from it as his share of the profits up to the 12th of January, 1874, a period of less than four years, $7,082 46, or about $2,000 a year. Within a few months after Behn gave his testimony in this case; on the 10th of the following February he was promoted to the rank of Division Engineer for the Western Division, still retaining his lucrative interest in the Empire State dredge, in partnership with the contractors whose charges against the State it was one of his official duties to supervise.

It appears from the evidence that the award of the Commissioners was founded upon purely fictitious charges.

Mr. Bennett states that, by direction of George D. Lord, he prepared for presentation to the Commissioners bills which included all the expenses that had been incurred in the prosecution of this work. Mr. Lord objected to these bills as being too small in amount, and directed Bennett to increase their volume fifty per cent., which was done. The whole amount of this award, with the accumulated interest, amounting to $33,782 36, was paid over to Jarvis Lord, as President of the Monroe County Bank. No part of it was ever paid to John Hand, and Thaddeus C. Davis received of it from Lord $10,600, of which he gave Lewis J. Bennett $3,000 only, retaining the remaining $7,600 for himself.

On the 23d of May, 1872, the Legislature appropriated "for dredging out Black Rock harbor the sum of $10,000, under the present contract for doing the same," and notwithstanding its alleged unprofitableness, the contractors went on with the work till the appropriation was exhausted, which occupied until the month of July, 1873. Emboldened by his previous success, it occurred to George D. Lord to ask from the Canal Commissioners another award "for the relief of John Hand."

The Commissioners met at the Tifft House, in the City of Buffalo, on the 27th day of November, 1874, the Board of Commissioners at that time consisting of Alexander Barkley, R. W. Stroud, and James Jackson, Jr. The only witnesses examined were Lewis J. Bennett, William H. Douglass, and William Richardson, Bennett's partners; Oliver Cornell, one of Bennett's workmen, and J. Frederick Behn, as we have already stated, a part proprietor of one of the dredges in use on this work, and either Assistant or Division Engineer on that division of the canals during the entire progress of it. Upon the testimony of these witnesses the Commissioners made an additional award "for the relief of John Hand" of $36,855. The difference between the various items of Bennett's bills for this work and the same amounts as claimed in his books is most glaring. The bill showed 4,565 3-20 days' labor on the Ohio basin; his books showed 2,241 4-10; the bill showed 4,726 3-10 days' labor on the Erie basin; his books showed 1,287½; the bill showed 9,146 days' labor on the Black Rock harbor; his books show 2,607 1-10; in other words, his books show in the aggregate only 6,135 days' labor; he claimed before the Commissioners 18,455½, or just about three times the number of days that were actually worked.

Every cent of the $70,637 36 awarded to these conspirators was in excess of what the law appropriated for their relief, and was obtained upon purely fictitious and fraudulent charges. Bennett's time-books show that the whole number of days on which a dredge was employed on the Ohio basin was 240. Mr. Bennett claimed $3,150 as interest for three years on $15,000, the assumed cost of machinery, tools, &c., used in the Ohio basin, and $9,000 for depreciation of the machinery during the same period, whereas the machinery and boats were actually in use only 240 days. The same dredging machinery was employed upon the work in the Erie basin. He claimed $2,800 for two years' interest on the $20,000, (its assumed value,) and $8,000 for depreciation, although the total number of days it was employed on this work was but 149. The same dredging machinery was employed in the Black Rock harbor. Bennett claimed $4,200 for three years' interest on its assumed value of $20,000; $9,000 for its depreciation during the same period, whereas the total number of days of its employment on this work was but 309.

The amount paid by Bennett for towing, according to his time-book, was $4,464 65; the amount claimed by him was $7,057 75. Bennett's time-book also shows that he was paid $4,446 more than even his own liberal estimates for the use of his dredging machinery.

The Commissioners, in making their first award upon two of Hand's contracts before the third was completed, acted without any legal authority; and in so far as they were responsible for the taking of this $70,537 36, from the Treasury are unquestionably bound not only morally but legally to see that it is returned.

But, in whatever direction we push our inquiries into this transaction we encounter fraud at every step. Not only was the award of the Commissioners made upon a substantial duplication of the expenses but the monthly estimates of the engineers on the work were also largely fictitious. The total amount of excavation under these contracts, as returned by the engineers was 493,471 cubic yards. The amount as ascertained from data furnished by Bennett's books, was only 395,700 yards, showing false estimates to the amount of 95,771 yards. The means by which this dredging company obtained such liberal estimates from the engineers was by direct bribery of the engineers and inspectors. Over $3,000 was paid to one John Hausle, an inspector, alleged to be deceased. From $300 to $500 was paid at different times to Behn, and additional sums to Jarvis Lord and others who were supposed to possess influence. Two thousand five hundred dollars were paid to Franklin A. Alberger for his influence in securing favorable legislation. The money was given to him ostensibly for "election purposes," but, really, as Bennett confessed because of his success in getting "appropriations." The receipt of Lord for $500 paid him on one occasion was produced in evidence.

Two hundred and fifty dollars was also paid to Resident Engineer W. W. Jerome, who acted as appraiser for the State.

It appears from the testimony of Mr. Thaddeus C. Davis that, besides acting as counsel in this last award, both for the State and for the claimants—taking down the testimony, writing or recording all the papers and drawing the award—he paid the expenses of the Commissioners during their sojourn at Buffalo on this business, including a "wine supper" at the Tifft House, at which were several invited guests, including Mr. Bowman, attorney in fact. The testimony of Canal Commissioner Stroud shows that the award itself was drawn up in the handwriting of Davis; that the paper was first presented to him by Bowman in the State House at Albany: that he [Stroud] never authorized it to be drawn up, and that during the whole transaction he [Stroud] had no idea that a previous award covering the same ground had been made. Mr. Stroud added that he failed to examine the books of the claimant, and in other ways took no steps to ascertain the accuracy of the claim. In the Fall of 1874, while in a carriage in Buffalo, he saw two packages of money divided between Davis and Folsom. You will please observe that this distribution of money on the highway by Davis to two of his companions who had been more or less actually concerned in making the second award, occurred on the next day succeeding that on which the award was made; whether the two events have any other than this chronological relation, is a subject which merits further investigation.

On the 10th of February following, by direction of George D. Lord, Bennett met Bowman at the office of the Canal Commissioner, at Lockport, to receive the award, which, for greater convenience in discharging various obligations which Lord and Bennett had respectively incurred in obtaining it, Mr. Jackson, the Canal Commissioner, issued in seven certificates of indebtedness, numbered as follows: No. 179, $2,500; No. 180, $2,000; No. 181, $9,355; No. 182, $4,000; No. 183, $1,000; No. 184, $16,000; No. 185, $2,000. Total, $36,855.

No. 184, for $16,000, and No. 183, for $1,000, were given to Mr. Bowman for Mr. Lord. Mr. Bowman informs us that the certificate for $1,000 had been made at his request, and was retained by him from Mr. Lord's share as his compensation. The remainder of the certificates were taken by Mr. Bennett. It is but justice, however, to Mr. Bowman to state that he has returned this certificate for $1,000 to the commission for cancellation and surrender. Some days after the division Davis called at Bennett's office, when the latter says he handed Davis a sealed envelope without any address, containing one of the $2,000 certificates. When asked how it happened that he gave $2,000 to Davis, in addition to what Davis had previously received, Mr. Bennett said: "I looked upon it that I got a large number of certificates, and he had been friendly. Although he had not made any claim against me for it, I felt that I ought not to have it all. That is all. I thought I would be as friendly as he had been."

Q.—Did you think Mr. Davis had been instrumental in getting you a larger amount than you expected to receive, and therefore you thought he ought to participate in the benefit? A.—That is the view I took of it, that he had been friendly and had secured a large reward, and it did not properly belong to me.

Q.—Did you know it properly belonged to him? Who did it belong to if it didn't to you? A.—The State of New-York.

Q.—Why didn't you give it to the State of New-York instead of Davis? A.—Because it was not customary, then, to be giving anything to the State.

Mr. Bennett testified that when he handed this note to Mr. Davis no words passed between them in relation to it, nor has Davis, since, ever acknowledged its receipt or made any allusion to it.

For some reason, which none of our witnesses are able, or at least willing to explain, Mr. Davis, on or about the 1st day of March, handed this certificate for $2,000 in a sealed envelope to Alexander Barkley, one of the Canal Commissioners who had united in this award. Mr. Barkley describes the act and what immediately followed in this wise:

"I might make a statement of just what the facts are: Last Winter, about the last of February or the 1st of March, I met Mr. Davis at the Delavan House—Thad. C. Davis; he had his overcoat and hat on, and appeared to be going out; he came to me and handed me what is called a legal envelope, about two inches longer than a common envelope, and the same width; my name was on the back of it—just written, 'Alexander Barkley,' on the back of it; said he 'There is a letter Mr. Bennett requested me to hand you;' I took the letter and put it in my pocket and went in the writing-room, at the desk, and opened it, and in the letter was a Canal Commissioners' certificate for $2,000; there was a power of attorney or an assignment; I don't know which; the name of the assignee was left blank; I looked at it and the thought struck me in a moment, 'There is something wrong about that award,' and I got up and went out to see if I could find Mr. Davis; Mr. Davis was gone out and I inquired for him of some gentlemen there, and they said he had gone out; I went to the office and got a small envelope, went in the writing-room, sat down and doubled the paper over about two inches, put it in that envelope and backed it to L. J. Bennett, Buffalo; put a stamp on it, and dropped it into the letter-box at the Delavan House; I had the certificate in my possession about thirty minutes; I was satisfied in my own mind there was something wrong about it, and I thought I would make some testimony that I might call on in case of necessity; I spoke to two confidential friends of mine, and told them what I had received, and what disposition I had made of it, and I have not seen the certificate since, and that is all I know about it; I can produce two men—responsible men—who, I think, will remember what I told them; who, I think, will swear to it.

Q.—What excuse have you for coming before this Commission and not telling us such a thing had occurred? A.—I didn't know but it was all right until this thing came out.

Q.—You have just said not? A.—I was fearful there was something wrong about it.

Q.—You don't know Davis' handwriting? A.—No, Sir; I don't know his handwriting; I want to say further if I had known what was in the envelope I should not have received it from Mr. Davis, but I didn't know what was in it until I opened it.

Q.—Do you remember what was written on the envelope? A.—'Alexander Barkley'—nothing else; right on the back of it.

Q.—Have you got that envelope? A.—No, Sir.

Q.—You sent that back? A.—No, sir; I tore it open and threw it on the floor under the table; could not send the envelope back because I had destroyed it so that I could not.

Q.—Did you understand that it was addressed by Davis? A.—Well, Sir, I don't know Davis' handwriting.

Q.—Do you remember the handwriting well enough to be able to identify it? A.—I don't believe I would; those are all the facts about it, and I can produce two responsible men—there are only two men that I ever mentioned it to—and those I mentioned it to right away.

Q.—Who are they? A.—Is it necessary to tell? I will tell you if it is necessary.

Q.—If you don't want it put down we don't? A.—One was Canal Commissioner Stroud and the other was D. S. Potter, of Schuylerville.

Q.—They were at the hotel at the time? A.—Yes, Sir; I spoke to them about it before I left the hotel.

Q.—Have you had any conversation with Davis since? A.—No, Sir."

Mr. Bennett testifies that he never heard of the certificate after he handed it to Davis. Mr. Barkley testifies that he posted it to Bennett, at Buffalo, within thirty minutes after it was given into his hands. Why Mr. Davis handed this certificate to Mr. Barkley, without any explanation; why Barkley should have posted it to Mr. Bennett, instead of returning it to the man from whom he received it; why, if he supposed there was anything wrong in it, he did not seek an explanation from one, at least, of the two parties, and especially from Davis, through whom it reached him; and why, as appears by his own testimony, he has never referred to the subject in his subsequent conversation with Davis, never acknowledged its receipt, nor taken the trouble to ascertain whether it ever reached Mr. Bennett, are all questions to which Mr. Barkley has failed to furnish any satisfactory explanation.

Hand, in whose name the contract was made, seems to have had no direct connection with the conspiracy, nor to have shared in any of the plunder; Bennett seems to have yielded to the seductions of Lord, Bowman, and Davis, without fully comprehending the nature or gravity of his crime. He has returned to this commission, in money and certificates of indebtedness, $12,554 50; he has promised full restitution of everything which he may appear to have illegally received from the State, and has manifested an apparently sincere contrition for his conduct.

The conspiracy to defraud the State seems to have originated with Lord, and to have been consummated by him, with the assistance of Kiley, Davis, and Behn; the Canal Commissioners, the official protectors of the State's interest, offering no serious resistance.

Mr. Jackson testified that he knew nothing of the fraudulent character of the claims set up in behalf of Bennett, and supposed the proof sufficient. If that constitutes any defense for him, he is entitled to the benefit of it.

We cannot dismiss the subject of Mr. Lord's legislative experience without directing your attention to the fact that while he occupied a seat in the Assembly, an act was passed authorizing and, in fact, directing, the Auditor to pay all claims which had been previously filed by any of the repair contractors of the State, with the certificate of an engineer attached.

We recite this clause of the act as one of the most notable specimens of predatory legislation on the statute-book.

"For the payment of the expenses of the ordinary repairs of the completed canals of this State, and for the sums that may become due to the contractors for repairs, and for moneys and interest thereon heretofore expended in reparation of breaches or casualties, deducted from the aggregate expenditures, an account of the same, as certified to by the engineers and retained from the amount of said accounts, the Canal Commissioners are required to issue their drafts therefor on the Auditor of the Canal Department, in cases where, and only where, the money has been actually expended, as shown by the records thereof in the Canal Department, and where an account for the same has heretofore been filed in the Canal Department by the parties making such expenditures under their contracts, and for no other object and purpose whatever, the sum of $1,700,000, or so much thereof as may be necessary, to be distributed, assigned, and apportioned, in the first instance, to the three divisions of the canals, as now constituted, as follows—(Laws of 1871, chapter 653.)

Under this act every sort of fraudulent, unlawful, and foolish claim which had ever been rejected by the auditing officers of the State had the breath of life breathed into it. Without any investigation of their character and validity—disregarding the previous decisions of the auditing officers—the Legislature pronounced them all good and ordered them all paid.

One of the first to profit by this was Mr. Lord himself. He went straightway to the Auditor, called up the claims which he had filed—doubtless in anticipation of an easy victory in the Legislature—and drew from the Treasury $12,431 61 for work, every cent of which he was bound by his repair contract to perform, and for which, therefore, he had no pretext whatever for Legislative relief.

As there seemed to be no one to defend the Treasury at Albany or elsewhere, and as it seemed only necessary to require him to ask for to receive, Mr. Lord was not long in finding a pretext for presenting himself again at the door of the Legislature for more relief.

During one of the severe Winter gales to which our northern lakes are subject, a portion of the Central Railroad, which runs outside of the canal, was washed away, and a quantity of dirt and sand was washed into a portion of the canal which Mr. Lord was bound by his contract to keep in navigable condition. The cost of cleaning it out and restoring the canal must have been very inconsiderable. Mr. Fay, Canal Commissioner at that time, and who, during a long period of service as a canal officer, seems to have been under the impression that it was his primary duty to promote the interest of contractors, testifies that Lord's expenses could not have amounted to $20,000. They probably were less than $5,000; but whether more or less, they were precisely the expenses to provide for which he was receiving $44,000 a year. But, as if the Legislature and all the State officers had absolutely forgotten the existence of any such contract, the extraordinary repair bill for the session of 1870 contained an appropriation of $40,000 to Mr. Lord, to indemnify him for the inconsiderable expense to which he had been subjected.

GEORGE D. LORD'S PLUNDER ON SECTION 14.

The financial results of Mr. George D. Lord's career as a legislator and contractor with the State in connection with these transactions up to the present stage of our narrative, may be briefly stated as follows:

First—Contracts for dredging:
Ohio basin	$17,979 53
Erie basin	16,881 99
Black Rock Harbor	39,585 00—	$74,446 52
Second—Legislative awards under the John Hand Relief act:
First award and interest	$33,782 36
Second award	36,855 00—	$70,637 36
Third—Direct claims of and awards to G. D. Lord:
Claims filed and paid under chapter 653 of the Laws of 1871		$12,431 61
Award for alleged damage under repair contract Relief act of 1870	40,000 00—	$52,431 61
Total		$197,515 49
Deducting for dredging below ten feet in the Ohio basin		12,445 97
Making an aggregate of		$185,069 52

Every cent of which, so far as we have been able to ascertain, was paid, or is charged against the State for work that was fully covered by the repair contract of Lord, under which the State was paying him at the rate of $44,400 a year.

George D. Lord's connection with the contracts awarded to E. W. Williams and Charles D. Skinner, and his influence in beguiling the State into the further expenditure in Buffalo Harbor, aggregating already over one million of dollars, will be treated in another report. Meantime, we deem it our duty to invite your attention to another transaction, in which, indeed, George D. Lord plays only a subordinate's part, but in which devices for defrauding the State are employed, unlike any to which we have hitherto called your attention. The testimony before us establishes the facts that Jarvis Lord, the father of George D. Lord, and George W. Phelps, in April, 1869, were rival bidders for a valuable repair contract; that Phelps submitted, in the name of his nephew, Charles F. Braman, a bid which was accepted, to keep Section 4 of the Erie Canal in repair for a period of four years and eight months, at the rate of $34,000 a year; that Lord offered, if Phelps would repudiate his bid and allow his [Lord's] to be accepted, to divide with him the profits they would make on the transaction, which he estimated for the term of the contract at from thirty to forty thousand dollars; that, Mr. Phelps declining to entertain this proposition, Mr. Lord proposed to pay him $9,000 if he would not sign his contract with the State, and also to protect him and his bail from any suit or other expense that might grow out of its non-fulfillment. This latter agreement was reduced to writing and delivered to Mr. Phelps. A copy of it will be found among the papers annexed.

This proposal was also declined. Mr. Phelps testifies that the effect of this definite refusal to unite with Mr. Lord in his scheme to defraud the State, was so effectually resented by Mr. Lord that he felt himself obliged very shortly to apply for a cancellation of his contracts and to withdraw from all further canal contracting work on the New-York State canals, under a conviction that Lord's influence over the canal officers, of the Western Division more especially, made it impossible for him to compete honestly for the work on anything like equal terms. For a circumstantial detail of the facts in this case, you are referred to the affidavit of George W. Phelps, and the correspondence of Jarvis Lord, George D. Lord, and others, hereto annexed.

JOHN BIGELOW,
D. MAGONE, JR.,
A. E. ORR,
J. D. VAN BUREN, JR.

ALBANY, Oct. 1, 1875.

The annexed papers consist of the affidavit of Mr. Phelps, already given in substance, various telegrams passing between George D. Lord and N. Ackley, of the Contracting Board, and others, in 1869, and a copy of the agreement entered into between Jarvis Lord and Charles F. Braman.

MEETING OF THE CANAL BOARD.

PETITIONS TO CANCEL CONTRACTS GRANTED—THE CHARGES AGAINST DIVISION ENGINEERS YATES AND BABCOCK.

ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 5.—The Canal Board met this morning at 10:30 o'clock. Lieut. Gov. Dorsheimer, Treasurer Raines, Secretary of State Willers, Attorney General Pratt, State Engineer Sweet, Controller Hopkins, and Commissioners Stroud, Jackson, and Thayer were present.

Commissioner Stroud presented the petition of Philip Corkings for the cancellation of his contract on Lock No. 52, on the ground that the money for the work is exhausted.

Attorney General Pratt moved that the prayer of the petitioner be granted on condition that the State be released from all damages. He thought the work ought to be stopped.

The motion was carried 8 to 0.

Commissioner Stroud presented a similar petition from Mr. Ford, who has a contract for widening Lock No. 51. The same motion was made and carried by the same vote.

Commissioner Thayer presented a similar petition from John Riley, who has a contract at Fort Plain. On motion of Treasurer Raines, this petition was referred to the committee having such matters in charge.

Secretary of State Willers, from a majority of the committee on the matter of increased elevator charges, submitted a written report, concluding with the recommendation that grain tolls on the canals be increased in the discretion of the Canal Board, and declaring that the elevator owners had violated their agreement with the State, made when the latter reduced the tolls.

On motion of Controller Hopkins, the report was laid on the table and ordered printed. He thought it was too late in the season to act upon it, there being only two months of navigation remaining.

Commissioner Stroud presented the petition of John M. Barnard for the cancellation of his Black River contract for the reasons given in other petitions, and, on motion of the Attorney General, the petition was granted.

He also presented a similar petition from John Brown, contractor for a dam at Little Falls, and it was referred under the head of unfinished business.

The matter of the charges against canal officials was announced by the Chairman.

Attorney General Pratt stated his deputy, Mr. Fairchild, was busy preparing a paper, and a messenger was dispatched to inform that official that the board was ready to hear from him.

Mr. Fairchild appeared and said he had prepared such charges against certain canal officials as he had been able to from the testimony taken by the Canal Commission. He could not vouch for the charges. He had no other information than that secured as be stated. He had examined the law, and found the Canal Commissioners could remove their subordinates, or they could suspend them and report to the Canal Board their action. He had therefore prepared these charges against Division Engineers Yates and Babcock. He thought these officials were equally amenable to the charges. He found some charges against each which did not apply to the other, and therefore he also intended to have separate charges against each. Treasurer Raines moved that the consideration be postponed until this afternoon at 3 o'clock. The Chairman inquired whether, in consequence of the suspension of these officers, some inconvenience was not experienced. Mr. Fairchild said the Commissioners had the power to fill the vacancies.

The Chairman inquired if the testimony taken by the commission could not be used.

The Attorney General said that could be done.

Mr. George W. Miller counsel for Yates, said that would scarcely be fair. He thought his client ought to have information as to how the proceedings shall go on and how he is expected to meet these charges.

The Chairman said it was only for the board to adopt the best manner possible to proceed. Of course, whatever charges are made will be furnished to the parties against whom they are made.

Mr. Miller said there was another question, which was as to the power to compel the attendance of witnesses. He had not been able to find any law authorizing this board to compel the attendance of witnesses.

Mr. Fairchild said there was such power.

Mr. Miller said, in behalf of Yates, that he would perhaps be ready to proceed this afternoon.

Treasurer Raines raised the question whether this board could go on with those cases before the State Engineer and Commissioner in charge had reported on them. He referred to the statute in the case, and moved a postponement till 3 P. M. so as to give those officials opportunity to examine the statute. Lost—1 to 5.

Some conversation then ensued as to preparation to proceed with the cases.

The counsel for the engineers suggested if there was an postponement it should be for several days.

Commissioner Stroud moved a postponement until a week from to-morrow. Carried.

Mr. Fairchild read the statute which authorized the board to compel the attendance of witnesses. He said he had drawn the charges presented from the testimony taken by the Canal Commission, but he would not confine his testimony to the evidence thus taken. He would introduce other witnesses and other testimony.

The board then adjourned to a week from to-morrow, (Wednesday.)

THE LATE MRS. HENRY.

The funeral services over the late Mrs. Henry, (eldest daughter of Mr. Hugh Hastings, of the Commercial Advertiser,) were held yesterday at the house of her husband. Rev. Mr. Reese, of Albany, officiated, and among those who were present to testify their respect for the deceased were ex-Commissioners Van Nort and Forrest, Mr. Andrew Green, Mr. F. Giles, Mr. Thomas Murphy, and a numerous circle of friends. Mrs. Henry was a most amiable and accomplished lady, a devoted daughter, and a good wife; and her loss will be long and deeply lamented by those whom she has left bereaved.

REWARDING THE FAITHFUL.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

I have read with pleasure your editorial on the desire of our City authorities to provide places of emolument and responsibility for those who, during the rebellion, took sides against the Union. In addition to those mentioned in your article of yesterday is Gustavus W. Smith, who in 1861 threw up an office of trust under the City to join the rebel Army. He has recently been rewarded; and Hugh S. Cole, who served in the rebel Army, is earning an unenviable notoriety as a "Gratz," and the World of Sunday, Oct. 3, mentions him as being an assistant to the Corporation Counsel. And so the list goes on. The chief recommendation for appointment under our local authorities is to have fought against the Union and to have been cashiered while in its service.

LOCAL MISCELLANY.

JOSEY SULLIVAN'S TRAGIC DEATH.

THE BOY'S SUPPOSED KIDNAPPING DISPROVED—HIS DEAD BODY FOUND IN A FEED STORE NEAR HIS HOME.

The mysterious disappearance of little Josey Sullivan, the infant child of Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Sullivan, of No. 412 Greenwich street, on Sept. 16, the publication of which will be remembered by the readers of THE TIMES, presented a problem which the Police were unable to solve, but which was made clear yesterday by a most painful discovery. It will be remembered that the child was described by his parents as being strong and active, but not likely to have strayed away from the block on which he lived, on account of his fear of crossing the street, a feeling that had been encouraged by his father. Mr. Sullivan therefore scouted the theory of the Police, which was that Josey had probably strayed to the river side and fallen into the water. He was inclined to think that the boy had been stolen, and there was considerable reason to suppose that such was the case, but the Police were as incredulous of this as the father was of their opinion. Yesterday afternoon, Mr. Thomas Rush, who keeps a feed store at No. 411 Washington street, was engaged with James Devine, a young man in his employ, in moving some bales of hay which were piled five deep on one side of his store, when on moving those in the lowest tier he found the body of the lost child wedged between two of the bales. The upper part of the body was nearly perfect, although the decay of three weeks had, of course, greatly altered the appearance of the face. The lower part had, however, been eaten away by rats, and it presented a sickening spectacle. No marks of violence were visible on his person, and it was thought probable that the child had strayed around to the store in his play and had mounted the bales in sport, perhaps with the thought of hiding from his nurse whom he knew would be looking for him soon. He probably slipped or fell between the bales, which were not packed closely together, and was wedged in too closely to make his way out. Here he remained and died a terrible death. The store was one that he was frequently known to pass on his way to and from his father's stable in Washington street, and was on the same square on which he lived. It seems almost unaccountable that he should not have cried out so as to be heard by those in the store when he found that he was imprisoned. He was not a child, however, who easily cried, and he may with his natural sturdiness have tried to extricate himself without calling for help, and he may have only cried out when the store was closed for the night. But if, as is more probable, he called for help immediately or soon after his fall, the cries were probably drowned by the noises of the street. Over the cobble-stone pavement in front of the store is a constant stream of passing teams, which make a deafening roar through the day, and the numerous children of the neighborhood are vociferous in their play. The noise that he may have made would therefore be easily drowned. On the other hand, he may have been stunned by his fall, and been unable to cry out.

The news of the finding of the body was taken immediately to the station-house in Leonard street, and the Coroner was informed. A man was also sent to see the body, and from the description of Josey Sullivan, already in the possession of the Police, it was at once evident that the body found was undoubtedly that of the child who was lost three weeks ago. As soon as this was discovered, word was sent to Mr. Sullivan's house in Greenwich street. Mr. Sullivan had just gone out, and the officer saw his wife. He either told her or she understood him to say that her boy had been found, and he questioned her closely about the clothes the child had on. She described exactly the clothing found on the body, and no possible doubt remained of its identity. She was of course greatly agitated, and wanted to know where the child was. The officer would not tell her, fearing the consequences if she should see the body without being prepared for the sight. She asked if her child was at the station-house, and he told her it was not, and advised her to wait till her husband should return home. This she would not listen to, and putting on her hat and shawl, started out in a frenzy of excitement to find the boy. Having no clue she was unable to accomplish anything by her search, and soon returned home to wait for her husband.

Mr. Sullivan returned about 6:30 and went immediately to the station, where the information that the officer had refused to give Mrs. Sullivan was at once given to him. He identified the remains, and permission having been obtained from the Coroner to remove the body, it was encased in a metallic casket and taken to Mr. Sullivan's residence, where it now lies awaiting burial.

THE FIRE ENGINEERS.

CHIEF JOHNSON WANTS ANOTHER EXHIBITION OF THE AERIAL LADDER.

The National Association of Fire Engineers reassembled yesterday morning at Firemen's Hall, President Hendrick in the chair. Communications from inventors of fire extinguishing apparatus and appliances, requesting permission to exhibit their inventions, were read. The question of time and place for practical exhibitions gave rise to a discussion, some delegates objecting to taking up the time of the session for that purpose, while others held that the chief object of their attendance was to inspect and hear explanations of all new improvements appertaining to fire apparatus. It was finally determined to hear inventors at 2 o'clock P. M. to-day. In view of the prevailing tendency in all cities to erect buildings beyond the reach of ordinary ladders, Chief Johnson moved that a special committee of five be appointed to consider whether a system of self-supporting ladders could be depended on to meet the emergency. The motion was carried, and the Chair appointed as the committee Chiefs Johnson, of Philadelphia; Benner, of Chicago; McFadden, of Memphis; Leshure, of Springfield, Mass., and Cronin, of Washington. Mr. H. H. Hall, a delegate from the Board of Underwriters, moved that ex-Chief Damrell, of Boston, be requested to prepare a paper on the progress made in Fire Department apparatus during the century, to be presented to the next convention, which was also carried. Chief Johnson expressed a hope that the New-York Fire Department would entertain the members with an exhibition of the aerial fire-ladder that all might be enabled to form a definite opinion of its merits or demerits. In making this suggestion he did not, he said, forget the late lamentable calamity which occurred in connection with an exhibition of the machine, yet, notwithstanding that, he still had great confidence in the ladder, and desired that the full convention would attend an exhibition if granted.

On motion of Mr. Hall a committee of three was appointed to draft resolutions of regret at the accident which recently disabled Chief Stillman, of Cincinnati. In an amendment offered by another delegate, the committee were instructed to include in their report a resolution expressive of the profound sorrow of the convention on the recent ladder accident in this City, and of condolence with the families of the brave firemen who lost their lives by it.

Mr. Walter W. Adams, Superintendent of Buildings of this City, having been invited to address the convention, explained the Building laws and the rules governing his department, and received the thanks of the delegates for the information. The convention then adjourned until 10 A. M. to-day, and proceeded in a body to the fire-boat Havemeyer, which carried the party to the Government works at Hell Gate, where, after an inspection of the works, an exhibition of the Havemeyer's fire-extinguishing power was witnessed.

The delegates were entertained last evening by the New-York Firemen's Association in the Bleecker Buildings. After a collation, toasts were proposed and responded to by the Vice President of the association, Mr. Ward; Capt. James Turner, President Hendricks of the Convention; Chief Johnson, of Philadelphia; Chief Benner, of Chicago; Chief Little, of Iowa, and others.

THE HOMEOPATHIC HOSPITAL.

OPENING OF THE SEASON OF 1875–6—ADDRESSES BY REV. DR. CONKLING AND OTHERS.

The opening of the Winter season of the New-York Homeopathic Medical College took place yesterday at the college building, corner of Third avenue and Twenty-third street. The exercises were opened by a brief introductory address by the Dean, J. W. Dowling, M. D., who, after cordially welcoming the students, spoke at some length in favor of the homeopathic system of medical treatment. It was fifty years ago, he said, that homeopathic treatment was first introduced in America, and it was then almost universally despised; but now, with such men as William Cullen Bryant, Rev. Dr. Tyng, Robert L. Stuart, and many other prominent leaders, to patronize it, it has received the public recognition of the best educated and wealthiest residents of the country. After alluding to the intention of the college authorities to permanently establish the "grading system" in the institution, the speaker introduced to the audience Rev. Dr. N. W. Conkling, who delivered a very thoughtful and eloquent discourse on the importance of the physician's vocation. He said that, next to the ministry, the profession of medicine was the most honorable and responsible. Such a profession the speaker argued, should be prepared for with seriousness and painstaking, with singleness of aim, honesty of purpose, and a sincere desire to promote the happiness of mankind, but the one, and above all, great need was full preparation for the duty to be discharged, because to the physician's hands were committed a paramount charge. For this reason the world wanted only those men who by honest effort had striven to learn all that could be known relative to the nature of disease, and the method of driving it from the human system. In alluding to the course of study in the college the speaker said that it would be a great and good thing if provision were made for the establishment of a postgraduate course of study, and also for the foundation of fellowships. It was a matter that appealed to the philanthropic and wealthy men and women of the country. Laboratories and libraries should be secured, so that those students whose tastes and natural aptitude led them to pursue courses of special study and scientific investigation, might carry such study and investigation into the various departments of medical science. Our centennial of national history, the speaker continued, should not find this great Metropolis of the New World destitute of an endowed medical university. His hearers, the speaker said, in conclusion, would not deem it merely professional argument, when he maintained that the physician ought to be a genuinely religious man. He, as well as the minister, needed gentleness to touch the wounds of humanity, and a capacity to ease the heart and minister spiritual comfort to the dying. The address was followed by briefer but interesting addresses by Profs. Paine, Lilienthal, Burdick, Allen, Helmuth, Bradford, Kellogg, O'Connor, Carmichael, and Drs. Hallock, Doty, Arcularius, Gurnsey, Jr., St. Clair Smith, and Deschaire. Rev. Dr. Dowling, the father of the Dean, made a very witty and entertaining speech.

LOCAL POLITICS.

MEETING OF THE REPUBLICAN STATE CENTRAL COMMITTEE.

The Republican State Central Committee met yesterday at the Fifth Avenue Hotel, A. B. Cornell, Esq., in the chair. There was a full attendance of the members of the committee, and most encouraging reports were received from all parts of the State. Messrs. Dutcher and Robertson, of the subcommittee appointed to hear the alleged grievances of the disaffected Republicans, made a partial report, and asked leave to be allowed to continue their sittings. The report was agreed to and the subcommittee will meet at Bleecker Buildings to-morrow morning at 9:30 o'clock, after which they will make a further report to the Central Committee.

THE FIGHT AGAINST TAMMANY.

A full meeting of the Anti-Tammany County Committee was held last evening at Irving Hall, beginning at 8 P. M.; Hon. Ira Shafer was in the chair. The first business considered was the report of the Executive Committee in relation to the contested seats of the delegates from the Thirteenth Assembly District. The Chairman of the committee, Mr. Emanuel B. Hart, reported that the delegation headed by Joseph Hunt should be recognized as the regular delegation. Mr. Isaacs opposed this, and a debate followed between him and Mr. Witt. The matter was referred to a committee composed of Messrs. R. F. Andrews, Benjamin Wood, Frank Ransom, James O'Brien, and Dr. Feodor Mierson. This committee reported that the best way of settling the difficulty would be to refer the matter to Benjamin Wood. This was adopted, and was understood to mean that there would be a compromise.

The Secretary then read the report of the times and places determined upon for district conventions. These have been published, excepting the places of the District Judicial Conventions, which are as follows: First District, No. 130 Greenwich street; Second, Brooks' Assembly Rooms; Third, No. 755 Broadway; Fourth, Germania Assembly Rooms; Fifth, No. 126 Clinton street; Sixth, Second avenue and Thirty-sixth street; Seventh, National Hall; Eighth, No. 316 West Thirty-sixth street; Ninth, One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street and Eighth avenue, and Tenth, One Hundred and Forty-seventh street and Third avenue.

A resolution calling for the assessment of $5 on each member of the committee was then passed, and the following resolutions were offered by Mr. James D. McClelland and were unanimously and enthusiastically adopted:

Whereas, The Tammany General Committee, which met in Tammany Hall on Thursday evening, Sept. 30, 1875, under the immediate domination of John Kelly, its dictator, adopted a series of resolutions upon a variety of subjects, but most studiously omitted by any expression to denounce the reduction of the laboring man's wages, or censure or rebuke the Commissioner of Public Works, Fitz John Porter, for his cruel and unjust course, or urge the immediate increase of the laborers' wages to the old rate of $2 a day, or make the same ratio of reduction among the wealthier City and County officials; and,

Whereas, The efforts of John Kelly, some months since, in a meeting of the Tammany General Committee, in smothering a set of resolutions offered by one of its members, denouncing the reduction of the laborers' wages, and then and there publicly declaring, in opposing said resolutions, "that plenty of men could be found willing to work upon the public works for $1 25 a day," and his subsequently causing the expulsion of members of that committee, whose only crime consisted in the fact that they freely expressed sympathy with, and extended aid to, the laboring men in protesting against the infamously unjust action of the Tammany Commissioner of Public Works.

Resolved, That this General Committee in Irving Hall assembled, representing the Democracy of the City and County of New-York, do proclaim that the reduction of the wages of the laboring man was, and is the fixed policy of the General Committee of Tammany Hall, as clearly shown by their acts of omission and commission, as well as its public declarations, and that the laboring classes should hold them fully responsible for this unwise and obnoxious measure.

Resolved, That any organization which tolerates the inauguration of such an oppressively discriminating crusade against the laborers on the public works, leaving the salaries of other and wealthier City and County officials to remain at the same rates as formerly, is deserving of the condemnation of all just men, and such an organization should be defeated by the suffrages of the people at the polls, no matter who are the candidates that they may nominate, it making little difference in effect whether such wrong or injustice comes in the form of kid-gloved, swallow-tailed respectability, or in the guise of course and brutal ruffianism.

Resolved, That we denounce the reduction of the laborers' wages as an outrage upon the rights of labor, and we do demand of the Commissioner of the Department of Public Works that the salaries of its appointed officials be reduced in the same ratio, or the wages of the laborers be increased to the old rates of $2 per day.

Resolved, That this organization do extend to the laboring classes a most cordial invitation to unite in one determined effort to overthrow their common foe by organizing in their respective localities, and to this end we do renew our pledges in the great work of honest, liberal, and economical Municipal Government.

THE REPUBLICANS IN BROOKLYN.

The Kings County Republican General Committee met last evening in Sawyer's Hall, corner of Jay and Fulton streets. David Williams occupied the chair. After the minutes of the last meeting had been read and approved Major Weeks, Chairman of the Executive Committee, offered a resolution naming Oct. 11 for the holding of the primaries to nominate delegates to the various nominating conventions. The resolution was unanimously adopted, as was the following, also offered by Major Weeks:

Resolved, That nominating conventions be held at the times and places hereinafter designated, and that the said conventions shall consist of the same number of delegates from each ward and town association recognized by this General Committee as the several ward and town associations are now entitled to representation in this General Committee: City Convention, at the Assembly Rooms, Washington street, Wednesday, Oct. 13, at 8 P. M.; County Convention, at the same place, Thursday, Oct. 14, at 3 P. M.; Second Senatorial Convention, at the rooms of the Republican General Committee, on Friday, Oct. 15, at 8 P. M.; Third Senatorial Convention, at the same place, on Friday, Oct. 15, at 3 o'clock P. M.

On motion of Major Weeks the delegates to be elected to the Assembly Conventions were authorized to nominate delegates to the Second District Judiciary Convention. The committee then went into executive session.

REPUBLICAN NOMINATIONS IN NEWARK, N. J.

The Republicans of Newark, N. J., held their City Convention in Library Hall last evening, Mr. Edgar Farmer presiding. The following nominations were made:

Mayor—Henry J. Yates.
Water Commissioner—John C. Beardsly.

POLITICAL NOTES.

A Frederick W. Seward Campaign Club was organized Monday evening at No. 678 Eighth avenue, in the Twenty-second Ward. The following officers were elected: President, W. J. O'Brien; Secretaries, A. W. Owens and James H. Maxwell; Treasurer, J. H. Shaw.

The Thirteenth Assembly District Republican Association met at Liberty Hall, No. 231 West Sixteenth street, last evening, Mr. Charles Blackie presiding. As the meeting was the first held this Fall its object was mainly to prepare for future effort. After the names of about forty applicants for membership had been submitted, Mr. Isaac Dayton briefly addressed the assembled members on the duties of the approaching canvass, and on the conclusion of his brief speech the meeting adjourned.

The Republicans of the Fifteenth Assembly District met at No. 352 West Thirty-fifth street last evening, Henry G. Leask presiding. The speaker of the evening was Col. J. H. Warwick. He dwelt chiefly on the importance of the school question, the advantage of specie payments, and the necessity for an honest administration of City affairs, unfavorably contrasting New-York with cities having a Republican majority. The Chairman called the attention of the audience to the necessity for registration, and enlarged on the importance of putting good men in local offices. A committee was appointed to make arrangements for a ratification meeting.

PREVENTION OF CRUELTY TO ANIMALS.

A meeting of the Executive Committee of the American Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals was held yesterday afternoon, Mr. Townsend Harris presiding. The favorable decision of the courts in the cases of the hog slaughterers and the "cider press dog" was reported, also a second contribution of $1,000 from Mrs. Harriet Cook, of West Goshen, Conn.; that the little girl, "Mary Ellen," had been provided with a comfortable and happy home; that, with the advice of the parent society, kindred societies had been organized at Omaha, Neb., and at Charleston, S. C. In all, thirty States and Territories were now at work in the good cause. Branches had also been organized at Nyack and at Delhi, N. Y. A letter was read from Gen. L. P. Walker, of Alabama, promising to push the work in that State and obtain the necessary legislative enactments. A large and handsomely engraved diploma from the Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals to Henry Bergh was exhibited. It was signed by the Earl of Harrowby and the Baroness Burdett Coutts. The Superintendent reported that since May 1 the agents of the society had prosecuted 293 cases of cruelty to animals, and 984 horses had been suspended from work.

AMERICAN INSTITUTE OF ARCHITECTS.

The New-York Chapter of the American Institute of Architects held its annual meeting yesterday at No. 128 Broadway. Reports were presented by the Treasurer, the Library Committee, and other standing committees. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, R. M. Hunt; Vice Presidents, Emlen T. Littell and George B. Post; Secretary and Librarian, A. J. Bloor; Treasurer, Henry Fernbach; Executive Committee, R. M. Hunt, Henry Fernbach, R. M. Upjohn, Carl Pfeiffer, N. Le Brun, and A. J. Bloor. Committees on education, admissions, examinations, and on library and publications were also chosen. The ninth annual convention of the American Institute of Architects will be held in Baltimore on the 17th prox., and a committee was appointed to make the necessary arrangements for a suitable representation of the New-York Chapter.

ROMAN CHARIOT RACE.

Wagner's painting of the "Chariot Race in the Circus Maximus," has recently been etched by Messrs. Ferris & Moran, and published by Gebbie & Barrie, of Philadelphia. The plate is twenty-three by nine inches in size, and forms a very handsome picture. Of the style of execution we can speak only in the highest terms. As an etching it is fully equal to the best specimens of that kind of work which are generally to be met with. All the life, excitement, and spirit which Wagner infused into the original are repeated with thrilling effect, the drawing being admirable and the tones of the coloring well rendered. We do not remember any recent engraving of the sort published in this country which on every ground commends itself more thoroughly to the lovers of works of art of this description.

Hon. Mr. Mackenzie, the Canadian Premier, has caused a letter to be addressed to Capt. A. N. Lee, of the United States Engineers, thanking him for the assistance afforded the engineers and other public works officers engaged in deepening the channel of the Detroit River near Amherstburg.

The quality of our restaurants is a subject in which a very large percentage of New-York's population have a deep interest. An important section of our business men resort to them for their meals, and thither transient visitors proceed for refreshment. The demand for them has caused a very high standard to be attained to in their management. Economy and excellence have been remarkably combined by their conductors. No better proof of this can be found than at the Union Square Hotel Restaurant, than which there is not a more elaborately provided establishment out of Paris. The first-class quality of all refreshments provided and the moderateness of the prices charged are equaled by the courtesy of the attendants. A cheap meal is as decorously set on the table as an expensive spread, and on the accommodation of small parties special pains are bestowed.—Tribune.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

THE BENEFIT OF GOOD ADVICE.

Mrs. Winslow, an old and experienced nurse, has devoted herself for more than thirty years exclusively to the care of children. She has a SOOTHING SYRUP for CHILDREN TEETHING, which we believe a most invaluable preparation, not only for CHILDREN TEETHING, but in all cases of DYSENTERY or DIARRHEA. We speak of what we know, when we say this SOOTHING SYRUP acts like a perfect charm in the above cases. We have witnessed the most satisfactory and pleasing results from the use of it upon suffering infants and children, in a great variety of cases. It gives universal satisfaction, is pleasant to the taste. We sincerely believe the mother who has a child suffering from any of the above complaints, and neglects to provide this medicine for its relief and cure, is depriving the little sufferer of THE REMEDY OF ALL THE WORLD best calculated to give it rest, and restore it to health.

Be sure and call for Mrs. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP for children teething.

THE FORDHAM RACES.

SPORT ON THE JEROME PARK COURSE.

FIVE EXCELLENT RUNNING CONTESTS—AN ILL DAY FOR FAVORITES—LEANDER, OLITIPA, COUNTESS, ST. MARTIN, AND DIAVOLO THE WINNERS—AN EXCITING STEEPLECHASE—THE CROWD AT THE PARK EQUAL TO THAT OF SATURDAY.

At the race meetings of Jerome Park, both in the Summer and the Fall, Saturday is the great day, and other occasions are called off-days. Certain it is, however, that yesterday this hitherto invariable law did not hold good, for there were about as many people as were present last Saturday. There were more in the grand stand, fewer in the club-house, and about the same in the field, making an average of about the same numbers. But it was plainly obvious that the persons who were present were all more or less bitten with the racing fever, and that none had come to the course as to a spectacular entertainment. All were more or less familiar with the thoroughbreds who took part in the different contests. All, even those who did not bet, had preferences founded on actual knowledge, and not upon the color of the jockey's jacket or the length of the horse's tail, as is usually the case with ladies who come to race meetings. Therefore the fact may be deduced that racing is becoming more and more a topic of interest to New-Yorkers, although temporarily the fashionable world has withdrawn its encouragement. This is probably owing to the circumstance that husbands' and fathers' purse strings are tied somewhat tighter than usual, and the fashionable fair ones have deserted the track because, like Flora McFlimsey, they have nothing to wear.

In spite of this detection the numbers who attend are considerable, for the world is not entirely peopled by women and men who live for dress and dress alone. The great majority of those who were present came by rail, and this includes many ladies who were brave enough to dare this thing. But in reality the matter is not so dreadful as it seems. The two special trains which leave the Harlem Road Depot at Forty-second street for the course, deposit their passengers, the first at the pretty village of Fordham, the second at a gap in the woods, by which rapid transit to Jerome Park is easily achieved. The walk through the woods at this season of the year is delightful. The air yesterday was warm and Spring-like in the afternoon, although it had been threatening and cold in the morning, and so pedestrianism was a luxury. It is true that there were some thousands walking the same way, but the mob was the gentlest, the quietest, the most discreet of mobs, the rough element being completely tamed and robbed of its roughness by the great majority of respectable persons who mingled with it. Of the many ladies who passed through the delightful woods yesterday, there was not one who felt in any way fretted or annoyed by the unusual position. But every one, male and female, gentle and rough, proceeded steadily through the meadows and along the woodland path to the little side entrance above the main doors of Jerome Park.

The avant-courriers of grim Winter, the frosts, have been so bashful about making their appearance that the trees have scarcely turned their colors. Most of them still wear their livery of green, though here and there one may observe a mass where the leaves have assumed a golden tinge, and in other quarters bushes and creepers of a sanguinary hue. It was hard to believe yesterday that the sad days of the year were at hand, and that all the loveliness of color, the masses of green standing out in relief against the bare blue sky, the emerald hue of the meadows, the frequent glimpse of wild flowers, blue, purple, and yellow, were things held by a precarious tenure, whose lease had already expired. Everything yesterday was of the Summer summery—the trees, the grass, the flowers, the sky, even to the warm, fleecy, golden clouds that sailed lazily over the arch of heaven. One can enjoy all all these things even if one is going to a race, and with the express intention of betting against the favorite. And it was not difficult to overhear remarks of "O papa, do look at these lovely flowers!" succeeding to exclamations of "Now, really, Mr. Blank, do you think Madge has any chance against Countess?" For humanity is very complex, the sentiments and sentimentalities are an atrociously tangled skein, and it is possible for women who adore art, and appreciate the highest poetry—Shelley, Keats, and Lowell—to be interested in such a thing as a Maturity Stakes.

Yesterday it was noticeable that there was more of a field at Kerns' Race View House than inside the precincts of Jerome Park. It, therefore, becomes a question whether it might not be a handsome and judicious policy on the part of the park officials to admit the fielders gratis. At present there is hardly any revenue derived from this element from the simple fact that the view from the hill outside is very nearly as good as the view from the hill inside. It may be objected that the persons who see the show for nothing are of a low order, roughs and rowdies, but this must go for nothing, because as it is they walk from the depot with the crowd and behave themselves admirably. This plan of admitting to the field gratuitously has been tried with success at Long Branch by Mr. Thomas Murphy, the genial President of the association, and its adoption here would do no harm, and would be a generous action toward the poor amateurs of racing. It may be mentioned, also, that it is the universal practice in England, where racing is racing indeed.

THE RACING.

THE MILE DASH.

The first race was a dash of one mile, for all ages, for a purse of $500, with penalties and allowances. In this there were ten entries, including Charles Reed's b. c. Rambler, Charles S. Lloyd's brown colt, by Asteroid, out of Katona; Thomas W. Doswell's b. c. Arcturus, D. McDaniel's br. f. Josie B., C. H. & W. A. Mullin's b. c. Paper Maker, James Thompson's ch. f. Emma, Harbeck & Johnson's ch. f. Australind, George L. Lorillard's b. c. Leander, Pierre Lorillard's ch. f. Springlet, and W. R. Babcock's ch. c. Egypt. To pick the winner out of such a lot was indeed a difficult task, and the speculators were in a state of uncertainty. In the pool-rooms the night before Egypt had the call, in consequence of his fine performances in the West, but before the race his friends weakened, and Josie B. became the favorite, but the knowing ones were badly taken in, the unexpected victory of Leander being a complete surprise.

There was little delay in getting them off, the lot getting away in a bunch, with Leander in front and Josie B. second. Leander ran out round the turn, and was followed by Josie B., whom he led a length, the latter being four lengths ahead of Emma. When they reached the quarter-pole Leander was still in front, a length and a half before Josie B., with Emma third, three lengths behind them and a length before Springlet, the others in a ruck. As they went to the hill Emma rushed up to Josie B., and as they went out of sight she passed the favorite and challenged Leander; but when they reappeared, Leander was still leading, and Josie B. was again in the second place, with Emma third, Springlet fourth, and the remainder of the lot still in a ruck. Their positions remained unchanged until they turned into the homestretch, when Lloyd's colt came with a rush into the third place, followed by Rambler; but in the meantime Leander came away and had the race won easily, passing the line four lengths before Josie B., who was half a length ahead of Lloyd's colt, Rambler fourth, the others close together.

THE HUNTER STAKES.

The second event was the Hunter Stakes for three-year-old fillies, one mile and three-quarters, and, although the stake closed with thirty-six nominations, only three came to the post, viz.: D. McDaniel's ch. f. Mattie A., August Belmont's ch. f. Olitipa, and James A. Grinstead's b. f. Gillyflower.

The reputation of Olitipa and Mattie A. frightened the owners of most of the entries, and they thought it better to pay forfeit and thus save half of their money. Of course Olitipa was the favorite. The distance being a mile and three-quarters, they were started from the shute, and when the flag fell Gillyflower was the first to get away, Olitipa second, and Mattie A. third. At the hill Gillyflower was leading a length and a half, but before going out of sight she was in the rear, the other two passing her like a flash. When they reappeared Olitipa was leading Mattie A. by a neck, while Gillyflower was three lengths behind them. When they came up the homestretch Mattie A. got even with Olitipa, and there was much enthusiasm when they passed the judges' stand neck and neck, Mattie A. having the inside. Gillyflower was already out of the race, six lengths behind the leaders. The leaders went round the turn still yoked, and the contest provoked great enthusiasm, as it was expected that they would remain together almost to the finish. At the quarter-pole Olitipa had her neck in front, and gradually increased her lead to half a length. As they went round the hill, the great filly was observed to shoot away from her competitor. When they reappeared Olitipa was leading three lengths, Mattie A. being a dozen lengths ahead of Gillyflower. As they came round the turn and up the homestretch Olitipa increased her lead and won the race in a "walk," by eight lengths, in 3:14. Gillyflower was beaten off a long distance.

THE MATURITY STAKES.

The third race on the card was the Maturity Stakes for four-year olds, three miles, and of the twenty-five nominations, five of them faced the starter, as follows: D. McDaniel's ch. f. Madge, George Langstaff's b. f. Countess, Joseph Donahue's b. f. Osage, Charles Reed's br. c. Brigand, and W. H. Chamberlin's br. c. The Hoaxer. Although Madge was the favorite the night before the race Countess now became the favorite, the "knowing ones" backing her heavily. When the signal was given Osage bounded off in the lead, followed by Countess, and then Madge, but before they got well round the turn The Hoaxer ran up toward the front. When they passed the quarter-pole Osage was making the running a length in advance of The Hoaxer, who was the same distance in front of Countess, while Madge was being pulled behind Countess, to make a waiting race. As they ran under the hill Osage was a length and a half in front of The Hoaxer, the latter being three lengths ahead of Countess, while Clark was pulling Madge all over the track. Brigand was beaten from the start, and remained in the rear. They were lost to sight going around the bluff, but when they reappeared their positions were unchanged. Evans kept Osage going and making the pace, which at best was slow, and was only challenged by The Hoaxer, while the two favorites were waiting and watching each other. At the finish of the first mile Osage showed a length ahead of The Hoaxer, who was leading Countess three lengths, Swim holding her steady, while Clark was still pulling at Madge and keeping her in the fourth place, two lengths behind the favorite. Around the turn again Osage left The Hoaxer two lengths behind, but the latter again closed, and at the quarter was at the leader's tail, Countess still being third, three lengths behind, followed by Madge. As they went under the Club-house hill again, Swim allowed Countess to move up, and she was soon at the tail of Hoaxer, and being satisfied with his position pulled the filly back again. Passing from view Osage was observed to leave The Hoaxer, and when they reappeared she was leading him two lengths, there being the same distance between them all, with the exception of Brigand. When they approached the three-quarter pole, however, Osage and The Hoaxer began to quit, and then Madge was allowed her head, and, rushing past Countess, assumed the lead. At the furlong pole Madge was leading a length, Countess being in the second place, Osage third and losing ground very rapidly, to the disgust of her backer. At the finish of the second mile Madge was half a length in front of Countess, Osage third, six lengths behind followed by The Hoaxer. Going round the turn again, Countess headed Madge, and subsequently rushed to the front amidst the hearty cheers of the spectators. At the quarter-pole she was leading Madge a length, while the others were a dozen lengths away from them and out of the race. After passing round the club-house, bluff, for the last time they reappeared on the lower turn, with Countess showing two lengths before Madge, while Brigand was third, twenty lengths behind, followed closely by The Hoaxer. As they turned into the homestretch, Madge faltered and received the whip, but it was useless. She could get near to Countess, who won the race without effort by two lengths in 5:43½.

THE MILE AND A HALF.

The fourth race was a dash of a mile and a half, for all ages, with penalties and allowances, which had seven entries, including Doswell & Cammack's b. f. Invoice, D. McDaniel's ch. c. Joe Cerns, Frank J. Bruce's b. g. Warrior, James A. Grinstead's ch. c. St. Martin, John Coffee's b. f. Nettie Norton, Charles Reed's b. c. Rambler, and A. M. Burton's b. h. Survivor. When they were summoned to the track the last two did not appear; so the field was reduced to five. The betting on the result was close and at heavy figures, and although St. Martin was the favorite, it was considered a very open race. St. Martin was known to possess a great turn of speed, but many people were afraid that the accident which marred his chances for the Kenner Stakes would prevent him from being fully extended without additional injury. He came upon the track, however, as sound as a dollar, and carried off the race, very cleverly, ridden by young Tom Sayers, the son of the famous pugilist.

The distance being a mile and a half, they were started on the new stretch, running into the woods. They broke away several times before the flag fell, and when it did, Invoice appeared to take the lead, with St. Martin second. When they reached the regular track at the head of the homestretch these two were still leading, and by the time they reached the furlong-pole Invoice showed decidedly in front, and reached the judge's stand three lengths in advance of St. Martin, who was two lengths before Joe Cerns, followed by Nettie Norton, with Warrior several lengths in the rear. Invoice went round the turn at a very rapid pace, and got away another length from St. Martin, while Joe Cerns closed up to the saddle-girth of the latter. When they reached the quarter-pole there were three lengths of daylight between Invoice and St. Martin, while Joe Cerns was at the latter's quarter, Nettie Norton being two lengths behind him and six lengths in front of Warrior, who was thus out of the race. As they ran round the hill out of sight, Joe Cerns fell back, and St. Martin was closing on Invoice rapidly, so that when they reappeared to view, St. Martin was lapping the quarter of Invoice, and Joe Cerns was close behind, receiving the whip. There was a splendid race up the homestretch, and as soon as they were squared for the home-run St. Martin came to the fore, his speed having been carefully nursed for a finish. Invoice, meantime, fell to the rear, while Joe Cerns came second, with Evans forcing Nettie Norton's speed out of her with whip and spur. St. Martin, however, kept up a powerful stroke, and passed the judges a length and a half the winner in 2:42. There was a fine finish for second place, Joe Cerns winning it by half a length from Nettie Norton. Invoice was fourth, three lengths behind, and Warrior beaten off a long distance.

THE STEEPLECHASE.

An excellent day's sport was brought to a close with a handicap steeplechase of two miles and a half over the regular course, which had nine entries, but only the following six sported colors when called upon: George Longstaff's b. h. Coronet, 5 years; L. A. Hitchcock's ch. f. Busy Bee, 4 years; Ayres & Sutcliffe's b. g. Diavolo, A. H. Torrence's ch. g. Trouble, 5 years; Joseph Donahue's b. g. Deadhead, 4 years, and J. G. K. Lawrence's ch. g. Boz. The speculators were divided as to favoritism, and Trouble and Diavolo alternated as favorites. The horses were started from under the bluff, where the shute joins the regular course, and when the flag fell the lot got under way together. Trouble immediately shot out to make the running good, and the first obstacle, a hurdle, was taken by him first, Diavolo being second, Coronet third, and the others in a group. The first three struck the hurdle without knocking it down, and then ran into the north field, where Diavolo challenged Trouble and took the lead. Taking a stone wall and two fences, they again came to the hill, under which was another hurdle, and this Diavolo jumped first, half a length before Trouble, who was leading Deadhead three lengths, the latter being a neck in advance of Coronet, with Busy Bee fifth, and Boz several lengths in the rear of the lot. Running into the south field, Trouble again assumed the front position, and took all the jumps a length in advance of Diavolo, who was closely followed by Coronet and Deadhead. They now came to the water jump in front of the grand stand, and the entire lot leaped the space so well as to elicit the applause of the spectators; not one of them made a mistake. They entered the track on the lower turn and Trouble was still a length in the van, Diavolo second, Coronet third, and Deadhead fourth. They turned to come up the stretch, and Diavolo got closer to Trouble, but the latter kept in front to the last hurdle, like the winner, but Diavolo came with a rush after getting over, and won a splendid race by two lengths in 4:15¼.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Oct. 5.—The attendance at Chester Driving Park to-day was large, and the prospects were flattering for fine sport, but enough rain fell during the afternoon to render the track very heavy and the time slow. In the first race, three minute class; purse $1,200, $600 to first, $300 to second, $180 to third, and $120 to fourth, the first money was taken by the b. g. Cadiz, beating Dream, Alberta, and J. L. SPIRITED BOAT-RACE AT GOWANUS.

An interesting boat-race took place yesterday afternoon at Gowanus, between James McAleer, of Staten Island, and Robert W. Bridges, of South Brooklyn. They rowed three miles—one mile and a half and turn—for $200 a side. The contestants were opponents in a three-mile race last May, when Bridges broke one of his oars and McAleer won the race. In the betting McAleer was the favorite at one hundred to eighty. After a short delay the referee gave the signal, and the boats shot away. McAleer soon showed in front, and before half a mile had been rowed he was two lengths ahead of Bridges. As the boats approached the upper stake-boat Bridges gradually began to creep up on McAleer. The latter put on a spurt and again shot his boat ahead. Bridges also spurted and when within 200 yards of the stake-boat passed McAleer. He kept the lead, and reached the stake-boat first, rowing the mile and a half in 11m. 49s., turning four lengths ahead of the favorite. On the return McAleer increased his pace, and rowed thirty-eight strokes per minute. He gradually regained the lead, and when half way from home came up with Bridges. An exciting struggle then ensued. First Bridges and then his opponent would show in front. Bridges finally crossed the line one length ahead. Time—25:44.

RESIGNATION OF ASSISTANT DISTRICT ATTORNEY RUSSELL.

Assistant District Attorney Horace Russell, who has for some months past been suffering from indifferent physical health, arrived in this City on Saturday last from the White Mountains, where he had been suffering for some weeks with an attack of typhoid fever. Although much improved, Mr. Russell found it would be some time before his strength would permit him to resume the duties of his official position, and not wishing in any way to retard the business of the District Attorney's office he determined to resign his position. His letter of resignation was received yesterday by District Attorney Phelps, who accepted it on condition that as soon as his health permitted it Mr. Russell would again resume his official duties. The position thus rendered vacant was then tendered to Assistant ex-United States District Attorney Joseph Bell, by whom it was accepted. Mr. Bell was Assistant United States District Attorney under Samuel G. Courtney and his successor, Judge Pierrepont, the present Attorney General of the United States, and while occupying that position was associated with District Attorney Phelps and Assistant District Attorney Rollins. YACHTING NOTES.

The work of the Resolute commences to-day with the first of the four races which her owner has been recently challenged to sail. This is the contest with Mr. J. D. Smith's schooner, the Estelle. The arrangement of details having been left to the Regatta Committee of the New-York Yacht Club, it has been decided that the race shall be sailed under the club rules, and Mr. Hatch also waives the condition of an eight-knot breeze. The race will be sailed over the course of the New-York Yacht Club, the start to be at 8 A. M., from Stapleton. The time for sailing the race with the Vesta and Dreadnaught has been changed, the day of starting being Tuesday, 12th inst., at 4 P. M., instead of Thursday, 7th, as originally intended. The course to be sailed is from the Sandy Hook Light-ship to the Five Fathom Light-ship at Cape May, and return. All three of the yachts are excellent sea-going vessels. The Vesta was one of the trio in the famous ocean race which the Henrietta won; the Dreadnaught is esteemed to be one of the finest weatherly boats of the fleet, while the Resolute has always proved herself a rapid sailer when it blows hard. The race between the Resolute and Comet has been fixed for next Friday, at 10 A. M., over the course of the New-York Yacht Club.

The present term opens with a large class, and the general appearances of prosperity are encouraging. The exercises commenced at 8 o'clock, with Dr. Alexander Wilder, President of the college, in the chair. The proceedings were opened with prayer by Rev. Mr. Stryker. This was followed by a musical selection, after which short addresses were delivered by Rev. W. S. Willis, Rev. Dr. J. H. Lightbourn, and by Dr. Wilder. Rev. Mr. Willis, who spoke briefly, said, while medical students studied to preserve the body, his profession studied to save the soul. The one taught the natural, the other a spiritual life, nor was one more mysterious than the other. He thought there should be considerable sympathy between physicians and theologians.

The meeting then adjourned.

The Chelseas, of Brooklyn, and the Hoboken Club played the first game of their series yesterday afternoon, on the Capitoline Grounds, in Brooklyn. It began at 4 o'clock, with the Chelseas first at the bat, and was quite interesting throughout. Both clubs played well and worked hard for the victory. At the end of the fourth inning the Chelseas were one ahead, and remained so up to the seventh inning. The Chelseas then made two runs in the seventh and three in the eighth inning, and the Hobokens adding only one run to their previous number, the game was won by the Chelseas by a score of 15 to 10. In the field, on the Chelsea side, Cassidy, Dunne, and W. West played finely, Cassidy making two very nice fly-catches. At the bat, on the same side, Hartman, Dodge, and E. West led, the first two making four single-base hits, and the latter three.
